MINISTER OF FINANCE IS HELD; CHARGE IS BRIBERY

Austrian Gunboat Deal Is Reason; Cabinet Up In Arms

IMPEACH HIM

Parliament Accused Of Misusing Seal To Order Arrest

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 20.—As further details leak out the amazement even of the Chinese is increased with regard to the arrest of Mr. Lo Wen-kan, the Minister of Finance. Reuter is semi-officially informed that Mr. Lo Wen-kan, November 10, submitted to the Cabinet a report concerning a proposed modification of the Austria contract signed in 1914 for the purchase of four gunboats involving £6,000,000. The Cabinet agreed to the modifications and instructed Mr. Lo Wen-kan to go ahead.

The original contract called for interest at 8 percent, also for the payment of the income tax abroad, while £7,000 was available as commission. The Government paid 25 percent of the contract price and construction of the vessels was begun but was stopped when the war broke out. Payment of the principal and interest was suspended when China declared war on Austria.

During the last four years the Austrians had pressed the various Ministers of Finance for payment. The Government, however, had waved aside these demands on the ground that the contract had not been fulfilled. Owing to the amount of principal and interest involved, the previous Minister of Finance, however, arranged to increase the interest to 9 percent, also that the accumulated interest should be compounded and be payable half-yearly.

AUSTRIANS ARE ACTIVE

When Mr. Lo Wen-kan took over the Finance Ministry the Austrian representatives continued pressure for payment and were endeavoring to induce the Government to confirm the order for the full amount of £6,000,000. During these conversations the £7,000 commission was brought up and raised to £8,000. Mr. Lo Wen-kan insisting that it should be paid to the Treasury.

He also insisted that if the contract were dealt with at all it must be seriously modified as it would be a waste of money for China to buy gunboats and munitions, and that the unfulfilled part of the contract should be cancelled, the interest lowered to 8 percent and the income tax, for which China was responsible, reduced from fourpence or fivepence to the pound.

As a result of these negotiations a contract was signed on November 14, reducing the total principal from £6,000,000 to £4,110,000, also stipulating that the £8,000 commission should go to the Treasury.

LO IS PRAISED

During luncheon at the Presidency after a meeting of the Cabinet Mr. Lo Wen-kan reported the whole affair receiving congratulations from the members of the Cabinet on the manner in which he had carried out the matter.

On Saturday afternoon the Speaker and Vice-Speaker of the House of Representatives accompanied by the Compradore of the Sino-Italian Bank visited the President.

The Speaker handed in a document charging Mr. Lo Wen-kan with violating the constitution, exceeding his official authority and accepting bribes. The charge of violating the constitution is based on a statement that the contract was a new one, therefore, it should have been submitted to Parliament and promulgated in a mandate if Parliament approved of it.

CHARGE BIG BRIBE

The charge of bribery is supported by the compradore of the Sino-Italian Bank who alleges that cheques were paid (presumably to Mr. Lo Wen-kan) for £30,000 and £5,000.

It is alleged that the Speaker insisted that the President should issue orders for the immediate arrest of Mr. Lo Wen-kan and that he refused to leave the premises until a police officer was called in and instructed to secure

Smiles from the Mixed Court

BY J. L. BUTTS

The melancholy days having arrived Tsz Fung-ching and Koo Ling-foo, not being possessed of the literary safety-valve at the disposal of the late Wm. C. Bryant, reacted in different fashion as the wailing winds, the naked woods and the meadows brown and sere began to desolate their rural outlook. They decided that the best thing for them to do was throw up their respective coolieships and come to the big city for a while. The lengthening evenings and the absence of cinema shows had gotton on their nerves.

"We thought we'd come to Shanghai and play a little," said Sze to the Mixed Court Magistrate, leading up to the reason for his charging Koo with theft before that tribunal.

"For a while it was all right and we had a good time and comfortable lodgings out on Ward Road. Then Koo got into a mah jongg tournament."

Next morning, Sze continued, he awoke with a severe chill, which he immediately perceived to be due to the fact that his bed cover was missing. He then noted that all his spare articles of clothing—five in number—were also absent. As a crashing climax he discovered that the $5 which he had carefully hidden the night before were as non-existent as the rest of his former possessions. Koo was not in the room, he was the only one who had access to it, and suspicion naturally fastened upon him. When he was located they found in his pocket pawntickets covering the discrepancies in the Sze wardrobe.

Koo admitted that the preliminaries in the Sze narrative were correct, but he began repudiating at a point coincident with the mah jongg game and denied with much heat that his funds had evaporated any earlier than those of his companion. As a matter of fact, quoth he, they ran shy simultaneously and Sze's surplus shirts were pooled with those of the witness for pawning. The two had journeyed to the pawnshop together and together they had received the proceeds. The accused party, however, had been made custodian of the tickets.

Koo was so earnest about it that doubt arose in the mind of the bench and the matter was adjourned in order that the pawnbroker might be called in to shed whatever light he might upon the problem.

COAL SHORTAGE NOTE

It was a picture calling for a caption, or an explanatory note or something, it seemed to Chinese Police Constable 1047.

There was Tung Kok-zai, sitting on the bunding of Hongkew Creek, looking as though hope were hull-down on the horizon. And there was Lee Tsoo-tsze, dimly discernable in the dusk and busily mining about in the mud of the creek bed, the water having sneaked off after the tide.

"Lose something?" sympathised the C. P. C.

Tung lifted a mournful eye, dropped it again upon the toiling figure below and nodded a disconsolate confirmation.

"Must be a serious loss, judging by the funeral expression," commented the policeman.

"About 300 catties of good marketable coal—with local stocks short on account of the strike. That's all," said Tung, so dramatically that his auditor could see the fuel market leap with every syllable, the books of Tung and Co. recording a corresponding deficit.

"But," pursued the C. P. C., after brief cogitation, "this one-man salvage crew of yours seems to be doing pretty well with the reclamation work down there."

"That's just the trouble," retorted Tung, and proceeded to explain.

This Lee Tsoo-tsze, he stated, belonged to an organised gang of pirates who ranged the Hongkew Creek, exacting tribute from boatmen and terrorising

Terrible Experiences In Bandits' Hands Recounted By Victim Who Escaped

Rev. H. E. N. Ledgard Writes Full Story Of Captivity Which Brought Him Near To Death For Readers Of The China Press

The Rev. H. E. N. Ledgard of the China Inland Mission at Shangtsai, who was captured by Honan bandits on October 28 at the outbreak of the bandit hostilities and released under dramatic circumstances after a thrilling two weeks in their hands, has written the following colorful account of his experiences in reply to a wired request from The China Press. It is the first authoritative, first-hand account of the bandit depredations that have caused five foreign powers to issue an ultimatum to the Chinese Government demanding the release of the eight foreigners still held by them.

BY REV. H. E. N. LEDGARD

It was early in the morning of October 28 that my wife and I were awakened by the guns of the bandit army as it attacked the city of Shangtsai. At first we thought it was some purely local disturbance, but the burning buildings and continuous firing soon showed us that something much more serious was taking place.

At 6 a.m. there was a banging at our doors, but we would not open them, and the brigands went off. At about 7 o'clock I heard the prisoners from the city jail go by with their chains clank—they had just been set free and the jail burned.

Snddenly at about 9:30 o'clock our doors were burst in, rifles were levelled at our heads and we were commanded to stand still while our watches were taken from us. Demands were made for any guns or silver we might have in the house. Then the bandits took complete possession and helped themselves to anything that took their fancy, even taking my wife's wedding ring.

The bandits remained in the house all Saturday and part of Sunday. On Sunday they demanded that my wife play the organ and amuse them by singing hymns. While this was going on we could hear the groans of men who were being beaten in the inn next door, intermingled with the sacred music. The robbers were trying to force the men next door to tell them where their silver had been hidden.

TWO OTHERS CAPTURED

On Sunday two American Lutheran missionaries, the Rev. Lundeen and Rev. Forsberg, were brought around to see us. We eagerly questioned them as to how they had been captured and they told us they had been captured at Yuchow in the Northwest of the province two weeks previously. The Mission premises had been completely looted, they said, their wives had been taken with them at first, but later sent back. We also learned from them that there were two French railway men with the bandits who had been captured 10 days before.

My wife and I had hoped until the last that they would not take any of us with them, but at 2:30 o'clock on Sunday afternoon one of the bandits ordered me to go. My wife pleaded with them but all in vain. I had just time to snatch a pocketful of biscuits and my Bible and give a few parting instructions to my wife before I was forced to mount a horse and carried off. We traveled hard all that night, resting only to take food and feed our horses. By the time I reached Siangcheng the

Annual Flower Show Is Brilliant Display

BY PHILIP KERBY

Yes, there is mint grown in China!

Fragrant luscious green mint with the tender stalks and juicy leaves that would rival any cultivated in the famous garden of Colonel Carter of Cartersville. Upon entering the room dedicated to the display of the humble vegetables in the annual Fall Exhibition of the Shanghai Horticultural Society at the Town Hall, the olefactory nerves are assailed by a sweet permeating perfume that knows no rival. But unfortunately Melisande is without her Pelleas, Pythias without a Damen, and Juno without her accompanying Jove. In other words I have yet to find a drinkable bottle of Bourbon in the Orient.

But besides the mint, there were flowers, vegetables and table decorations to delight the heart of the most capricious. The main hall is given over to a great display of chrysanthemums of nearly one hundred different varieties.

It is doubtless sacrilligious, or flirting with destiny, or something like that to compare the exhibition of Chrysanthemums held at the Town Hall with the Chrysanthemums shown in Japan to the advantage of the former, but such is the case. The China-side flowers are not only larger and more beautiful but there is a greater variety of species and coloring.

However the table decorations and the miniature gardens shown by the Japanese ladies division are well worth going many miles to see. There is snow scene with tiny firs and an old water mill perfect to the last detail, the foam in the mill race traced by sprinkled salt. Another interesting miniature garden showed a rocky promontory overlooking the sea with a single dwarf pine with six gnarled branches jutting out of the rock. The pine was scarcely more than three inches in height.

Other table decorations set apart in a special room showed individual examples of cut flowers attractively arranged against individual backgrounds of Japanese silver screens. Standing in front of each exhibit was a miniature lantern which cast grotesque shadows on the screen beyond.

The pungent fragrance of the chrysanthemums mingled with the perfume of the few camelias was delightful but could not compare with homely smell of kitchen garden mint, for that carried with it a host of half-forgotten memories, and unless a perfume invokes a pleasing picture in the eye of the mind, of what avail?

SHANGHAI MEN OFFER $20,000 FOR MOTHER'S RELEASE

80-Year-Old Lady Being Held For Ransom By Bandits In Fenghua

The sum of $20,000 have been offered by Woo Zau-ding and Woo Yue-ding, Shanghai contractor operating under the name of Sing Jin-kee, for the return of their mother, who was kidnapped by bandits in Fenghua from her home at Chi Chia-chiao, Shaoching, on November 9. The lady is 80 years old and an invalid. She is being held for ransom.

The offer is made through the Chinese press by the two sons. The money is deposited with the Ju Yuen Bank at Fenghua, which is authorised to pay the full amount of the reward.

The Woo brothers reside at 459 Wehaiwei Road.

Victrola Stockholders Get 600 pct. Dividend

New York, Oct. 28.—Victor Talking Machine stockholders have ratified the proposal to increase capital stock from $5,500,000 to $35,500,000, of which $30,000,000 common stock is to be distributed as a 600 per cent stock dividend.

3 POWERS TO ACT IN FULL ACCORD; ALL ARE CORDIAL

Turk Question Will Be Settled In Terms Of Friendship

WANT EQUALITY

Curzon, Poincare And Mussolini Agree On Details

(Reuter's Service)

Lausanne, Oct. 19.—A communique issued after the Inter-Allied meeting at Territet, says that M. Poincare, Signor Mussolini and Lord Curzon had their first conversation today, during which they made clear their common resolve to settle in a spirit of the most cordial friendship and on a basis of perfect equality between the Allies all the questions which will be dealt with at the Lausanne Conference.

There was a further conference subsequently, after which the Ministers departed for Lausanne. They will meet again tomorrow probably at Ouchy.

TURKS TO TAKE OVER

Constantinople, Nov. 19.—In accordance with the agreement between the Allied High Commissioners and Rafet Pasha, the administrative services and Gallipoli will be handed over to the Turks on November 25.

ELECT CROWN PRINCE

Constantinople, Nov. 19.—An Angora official despatch states that the National Assembly have elected Abdul Medjid, the Crown Prince, the new Caliph. The formal ceremonies will take place tomorrow at the Topcapou Palace.

Later. While Abdul Medjid obtained a strong majority over Selim, the son of Abdul Hamid, and indeed, was considered elected, a later message from Angora says that the discussion was resumed this morning, suggesting a hitch.

Meanwhile conditions in the Palace are said to be chaotic. All the servitors of the late Sultan have gone over to the Kemalists.

The Sultan, before his departure, made General Sir Charles Harington the somewhat embarrassing request, to look after his wives and family. It seems likely that some of the former will desire to join their husband abroad.

NEW CALIPH EDUCATED

Constantinople, Nov. 20.—Abdul Medjid, the new Caliph, is 54 years of age. He is the son of the Sultan Abdul Aziz and cousin to the deposed Sultan. Abdul Medjid was elected by 148 votes out of 162 cast by the Assembly, which numbers 300.

The new Caliph is highly educated and is a very interested patron of music and painting. The Amir of Afghanistan received 2 votes.

Rafet Pasha was in a towering rage when he heard the news of the Sultan's disappearance and soundly rated the police authorities. He expected he would be disgraced by the Sultan's departure from the palace, which was not noticed for two hours.

ENDS CENSORSHIP

Constantinople, Nov. 19.—The Allied High Commissioners have decided to abolish the inter-Allied censorship on Rafet Pasha's undertaking to see that the newspapers do not publish anything harmful to the safety of the Allied troops and to public order.

Constantinople, Nov. 18.—On receipt of the news of the Sultan's flight the Angora Government decided to summon a special sitting of the National Assembly and also telegraphed asking Rafet Pasha how the flight was accomplished and professing inability to understand the reasons for it.

The Turkish newspapers comment indignantly on the flight. The Tanin publishes a report that the Sultan has carried off some sacred relics of the Prophet and jewels belonging to the dynasty.

Paris, Nov. 18.—It is officially announced that the preliminary exchange of views at the Quai d'Orsay between M. Poincare, Earl Curzon and the Italian representative, Baron Avezzana, revealed complete agreement of the Allies on all questions to be discussed at the impending Lausanne Conference.

Peking Envoy Denies Report Government Plans Mortgage Of China Merchants Co.

Head Of Commission To Probe Steamship Firm Scandal Says Charge Is Propaganda To Discredit Peking

"There is absolutely no truth in the report that the government intends to mortgage the China Merchants' Steam Navigation Company for a loan," asserted Mr. Shou Hung-tsing, head of the commission which will investigate the charge brought against the present directorate by certain shareholders of the company, when interviewed yesterday by a representative of THE CHINA PRESS.

Mr. Shou is delegated by the Central Government to probe the complicated situation following several petitions filed in Peking with the Ministry of Communications against the present directorate, alleging negligence on the part of the administration, causing loss of life and property, usurpation of the power of administration for the purpose of corruption, intriguing with political cliques detrimental to the sovereignty of the nation and other serious charges.

Mr. Shou is president of the Tangshan Engineering College. He was formerly Chinese Consul-General at Vladivostok. He is accompanied by Mr. Wu Pei-huang chief of the Telegraph Department of the Ministry of Communications; Dr. F. Chang, chief of the Navigation Department of the Ministry of Communications, and Mr. Yin Tai-chu, a counsellor of the Ministry. Members of the commission are staying at the Kalee Hotel, with offices at the material department of the Chinese Telegraph Administration, 27 Markham Road.

Mr. Shou and his associates called on the members of the local Consular Body yesterday and will start their investigation work immediately. Formal notice will be served on the directorate today or tomorrow, it is understood. The commission is not concerned with the case against Fu Siao-en, charged in a recent President Mandate with sedition and inciting strikes, according to Mr. Shou.

Following the order for the arrest of Fu from Peking, it was freely reported in the local press that Peking merely adopted this high-handed policy against the directorate of the China Merchants', of which Fu is one of the active directors, in order that the Ministry might acquire the property of the company under the pretext of government control and secure a loan on the property. Mr. Shou took occasion to deny emphatically this report, intimating that it was merely propaganda on the part of certain opponents to discredit the government.

"We fully realise that out here, people are apt to slight the Central Government," continued Mr. Shou, "but in this instance, I can assure you that the government is to do nothing except what is right. Several charges of very serious nature have been laid before the Government, which has no alternative but to conduct an investigation. The members of the commission have all been very carefully selected so that none of us should have any biased opinion of the present administration of the company.

"We are not concerned with the personality of Fu, whose arrest has been ordered by the President. Our work of investigation will be confined to the present organisation and operation of the China Merchants' Steam Navigation Company, and to that alone."

Mr. Shou did not anticipate any opposition from the company to the carrying out of the work of investigation, because, he maintains, the shareholders of the company, who are all anxious to see the company prosperous, will be with him in spirit when a thorough airing of the conditions takes place. On the contrary, it would appear self-conflicting on the part of the opponents if they attempt to put any obstacle in the way of the investigators, who are here, Mr. Shou said, to help the company rather than to injure its interests.

The chief commissioner plans but a brief stay in Shanghai. As soon as his work is finished he intends to return to his Tangshan post in order to assure the public that the Central Government and the Ministry of Communications have no ulterior motive in the matter and are desirous of re-

BLIND WORKERS GIVEN NEW SHOP BY ROTARY CLUB

Establishment Officially Turned Over To Institution; Orders Wanted

The new workshop of the Institution of the Chinese Blind at 4 Edinburgh Road, donated by the Shanghai Rotary Club was officially turned over to the institution Sunday afternoon with appropriate ceremonies by Mr. H. B. Lane, President of the Rotarians.

Mr. George B. Fryer, superintendent, in a brief speech of acceptance told of the long felt need of such a building for the industrial department to expand from its present cramped quarters.

In outlining the work accomplished by the fourteen blind men, he urged that every assistance should be given to those eager and anxious to help themselves who are dependent upon this work to eke out a livilhood. He stated that they are engaged in filling orders for wicker and rattan furniture, which they accomplish better than the ordinary artisan because their entire attention is concentrated on their work. A business of $300 monthly will make this department entirely self supporting and it is therefore hoped that all who can will either call and make an inspection of the stock on hand or place orders for future delivery. A new department has been recently added to include the manufacture of split bamboo screens and mats, Mr. Fryer said.

INVESTIGATE BABY'S DEATH; TENSE SCENES AT INQUEST

Post-Mortem Fails To Give Death Cause

STILL A MYSTERY

Re-enact Death Scene For Coroner's Jury Today

Dramatic scenes marked the continuation of the inquest into the circumstances surrounding the death of Maurice Kingsley, six months old son of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Kingsley, 223 Ben Building, before Coroner N. E. Lurton yesterday afternoon. Still more dramatic scenes are expected this afternoon when Coroner Lurton, Acting U. S. District Attorney C. P. Holcomb and the coroner's jury meet again at the Kingsley apartment at 2:30 o'clock to familiarise themselves with the scene of the death of the child.

On the witness stand yesterday Mr. Kingsley, the father, declared that he believed the child was accidentally smothered to death, and the coroner's jury this afternoon will examine the crib of the baby fixed just as it was when the child was found dead and determine whether or not it could have come to its death by smothering.

Dr. Thomas B. Dunn and Dr. C. C. Landis, who performed the autopsy both testified at yesterday's hearing on the results of the autopsy which failed to disclose any reason for death.

AUTOPSY RESULTS

Dr. Dunn's tsetimony was marked by two statements that assisted in clearing up the mystery of the child's death to some extent. He testified that no stoppage was found in the windpipe, so that it was extremely doubted that the child could have choked to death, and that the only mark on the body was a contusion on the abdomen about 5 inches by 3 inches which he doubted very much could have caused death. The mark was about the size of that made by a male hand, he said, but there were no indication of finger marks whatever, and the wound might have been caused by the child falling.

Dr. Dunn also testified that in his opinion the discoloration on the abdomen would have had little, if any, effect on the vital organs below as it did not appear to have gone below the skin. Asked whether or not a blow might have caused the marks and been responsible for death by shock, Dr. Dunn said he doubted it.

The autopsy revealed no cause of death, he said, but a brown fluid found in the stomach was still to be analysed by the Municipal laboratories. The fluid, in his opinion, was possibly post-mortem changes in the stomach. In answer to a juryman, Dr. Dunn said that it was unlikely that the child could have died from natural causes as it was extremely healthy in every respect. Dr. Landis briefly corroborated Dr. Dunn's testimony.

When Mr. Kingsley took the stand again he was asked whether or not he had anything new to tell the jury. After bowing his head in prayer for a minute or two he said he had.

"I was so dazed at the last hearing that I neglected to tell you of what may be an important point," Mr. Kingley said. "It has been weighing of my conscience ever since. Last Sunday after the amah had brought baby back from Jessfield Park she told me the baby had some red marks inside its thighs. They, possibly, were the marks on the abdomen referred to in previous testimony. I received a message on Saturday telling me of the death of my brother and that, coupled with the baby's death, has upset me terribly. I'm sorry I forgot it before.

"GOD'S WILL"

"There have been remarks that I did not seem to care for the baby, which are not true. I have been terribly worried lately over financial matters and have not given time to playing about with baby—perhaps I have neglected both baby and my wife, but I did care for it, and miss it terribly now that it's gone.

"My wife's mother has been praying that something would break me, and it has come. It must be an act of God, for I feel that the baby was smothered in death in its crib. It looked just like my mother."

Mr. Kingsley was cross-examined by Mr. Lurton, Mr. Holcomb and members of the jury on practically every statement he made and at one time was told bluntly by one of the jurymen that he thought he was withholding something.

"As God is my witness I am telling the truth and the whole truth, so help me God," Kingsley declared in a strained voice.

"You say you went to the crib before you went to shave. Did you ever do that before?"

"No, it was the first time I had paid any attention to baby when I got up in the morning. When it woke me with its crying and I got up I walked over and it appeared to be too far under the covers so I pulled the covers around a little and then shaved. A few minutes afterward my wife ran to me with the baby apparently dead. I tried artificial respiration on it but it was of no avail."

MOTHER TESTIFIES

Mrs. Kingsley also took the stand at yesterday's hearing and repeated her former story of the manner in which the baby's death came to her. She said that when she bathed it Thursday there were no marks on its little body and how they came there was a mystery to her.

The father had never threatened the child, she said, and liked it although he was often inattentive and she had hinted to him that he should show more affection for the baby.

Asked the direct question, Mrs. Kingsley said she had asked for an inquest because she wanted to know exactly what had caused the baby's death, and that she was still mystified as to the direct cause but was sure it had died an unnatural death.

Questioned concerning the arrangement of the crib and covers and the possibility of its smothering Mrs. Kingsley said she did not believe the baby could have smothered to death.

In view of the importance of the theory of smothering advanced by the father, Mr. Lurton adjourned the inquest at 5 o'clock until this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and instructed the mother to have the crib and covers arranged just as they were when she put the baby to bed, so that the jury could decide whether or not smothering were possible.

The members of the jury sitting in the inquest are Messrs. George McGrane, Warner J. McKee, H. C. Pander, A. J. Rubel, F. A. Bowen and J. T. Wright.

MACAO STEAMER IS SEIZED BY 55 PIRATES; 2 DEAD

Watchmen Killed, Captain And Passengers Wounded; Slayers Escape

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, Nov. 20.—The Hongkong-Canton-Macao Steamboat Company's steamer Suian arrived at Hongkong this afternoon and moored in the Naval anchorage, later proceeding to the wharf.

Reuter's correspondent is informed that the Sui An left Macao yesterday afternoon as usual at 5 p.m. At 5:45 p.m. 65 Chinese who were travelling as first and second class passengers pirated the ship.

The Captain, a French priest, a European and a Chinese passenger were seriously wounded, while two Indian watchmen were killed and two wounded.

The pirates made prisoners of the passengers. The ship was steered to the neighborhood of Kwatow where the pirates escaped in sampans.

next morning it had already been taken and burned.

WHOLESALE ARSON

Sengchiuhsien and Ingchowfu, in Anhwei province, were also taken and burned during the next few days. At Sengchiuhsien I saw Mrs. and Miss Soderstrom for a few minutes and learned from them that our mission premises had been burned down when they had been captured. They had been without food for some time and were glad of the few peanuts and scraps of food that I had in my pocket.

From Ingchowfu the robber army made for Kushihhsien but failed to capture the town. They then turned westward and then made for Hsihsien in southeast Honan. My escort from this time on consisted of one man and owing to the fact that my horse gave out we got far behind the main body. It was then that the possibility of escape first entered my mind.

I urged the robber to give up his evil ways and escape with me, promising to do my best for him. He had serious thoughts of doing so, but his desire for loot lured him on.

When we reached Hsihsien we found that the place had been burned and looted. I was allowed to go on to the Mission premises owned by the American Lutherans and was told the same sad story of looting, murder and kidnapping.

The Rev. Mr. Borg Breen and his five year old son, Rolfe, had been taken away. They were kept away from each other as they were in different companies of the bandits. When Mrs. Borg Breen stooped to kiss her little child good-bye as they took him way one of the bandits struck at her and knocked off her hat.

MAKES HIS ESCAPE

On Thursday night, Nov. 9, we spent the night at a village 50 li north of Hsihsien and in the morning rode on ten li before we got off our horses and went into a house to warm ourselves as it was a very cold day.

While in the house one of the villagers called my bandit guard outside. He picked up his rifle and went out. As he stepped out the door he was grabbed from behind by one sturdy young fellow and held until seven armed villagers rushed forward and took his rifle from him.

They looked so fierce and desperate that I tried to flee but was instantly held up with a rifle pointed at my head.

I thought my end had come.

The trigger clicked, but the cartridge failed to explode.

The bandit guarding me was shot and two other men who had joined the bandit army that morning were also shot by the villagers. In the ensuing excitement I escaped. I could not run far as the village was surrounded by a moat, but I waded through the water to the other side. As I stepped ashore I was seized again and robbed of the few things still in my possession.

Once more I escaped only to fall into the hands of another mob of infuriated villagers, who demanded why their houses had been burned down. Because I was wearing clothes that had been given me by the bandits they insisted that I too was a robber despite my protests. They took me to a temple and while considering what they would do with me someone raised the cry, "The Brigands are returning."

Everyone fled for their lives except the keeper of the Temple who hid me under some straw and told me not to move.

A CHRISTIAN'S HELP

An hour later a hand was pushed under the basket that covered my face and a few pieces of bread given me. After a considerable time I heard a voice calling.

"Pastor, come out, it is alright."

I was glad indeed to get out of my cramped hiding place and find a Christian Chinese to befriend me. He pursuaded the village elders to let me go, assuring them that I was not a robber but a missionary who had been enticed off from Shangtsailsien.

With this good man's help I made my way to Loshanhsien and from there to Sinyangchow on the Peking-Hankow Railway.

I took train to Yencheng where I found my wife and child. That was on November 14.

This robber army consists mostly of the ex-governor of Honan's disbanded soldiers with a sprinkling of real bandits. The majority of them are mounted and well armed with good rifles. They claim to be 40,000 strong but this number can be reduced by noe-fourth. They compel the young men they come across to join them.

On the march they extend about 20 li wide. At night to light their way and terrify the country people they set fire to farm houses and leave them burning. Every city I was taken to was burned to the ground.

CARRY AWAY WOMEN

Thousands of men, women and children were carried off, some were ransomed by their friends, others unable to keep up with the bandits, were cruelly shot and left by the wayside.

The road I traveled was strewn with dead bodies of men and animals. In one day I counted 48 horses which had been killed. They rode hard, and when the animal could go no further he was bayonetted and another mount secured.

Last Saturday—this is being written on November 17—this army of bandits reached the railway line south of Chumatien. The government soldiers put up some show of fight but were quite outnumbered. After a couple of days practically all had crossed the line and were safe on their way to their old haunts in the Western hills of Honan. The loot in their hands must be very considerable.

The government soldiers followed them at a respectful distance as it is quite a question whether or not they have the desire to fight their old comrades. They are certainly quite inadequate, as far as numbers go, to deal with this formidable army of bandits. When I escaped there were six men and one child still in the hands of the bandits—four Americans, two Frenchmen, and one Italian. The two Frenchmen were employed on the Lunghai Railway. The others are missionaries and a missionary child.

The four Americans still in the bandits' hands when Mr. Ledgard escaped are believed to be the Revs. Borg Breen, Frosberg and Lundeen, and Rolfe, the 5-year old son of Rev. and Mrs. Borg Breen. The Italian is Father Grimaldi.

Turkey Enough For Everybody At 'Y' Dinner

The Thanksgiving dinner to be served at the Navy Y. M. C. A. on Thursday, November 27, will not be limited to members of the Community Church or Americans, it was announced last night by Mrs. P. L. Creighton, who is in charge. The dinner is to be prepared and served by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Community Church.

Covers will be laid for 150 persons and reservations may be made with Mrs. Creighton, 547 Avenue Joffre, phone—West 230; or Mrs. E. E. Barnett, 138 Dixwell Road, phone—North 1696.

FOR REMOVING SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

No woman who has any sense of beauty will deny that superfluous hair is one of the greatest drawbacks to good looks.

Realising this, women of all times have put themselves to any expense, and have endured considerable pain and discomfort in order to rid themselves of this great disfigurement.

Nowadays electrolysis is a prevalent "cure" for this evil, but in reality this process involves a great deal of unnecessary expense, waste of time and pain.

The simplest quickest, and most effective treatment can easily be carried out by any sufferer, in the privacy of her home. This is the recipe:

Procure about 1 oz. powdered pheminol from your chemist; mix a sufficient quantity with a few drops of water into a stiff paste. Apply this carefully and thoroughly to the hair you wish to remove and allow the paste to dry. In a few minutes it can be gently scraped away. The skin is left absolutely free from hair, and should then be carefully washed in warm water, and if desired, lightly dusted with a little talcum powder. (Advt.)

Soviet Plans For Siberia Are To Aid Economic Reconstruction

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, Nov. 20.—It is semiofficially stated that, apart from determined eradication of the slighest possibility of the repetition of White movements, Moscow's intentions in the Far East are peaceful. Her main endeavor will be to create conditions favorable for economic reconstruction.

Although the Buffer State is abolished, its legal code will temporarily hold good in the Far East with regard to industry and commerce until it can gradually be substituted by the Soviet code, as Moscow fears that a sudden change would kill trade.

The monetary system will also be unchanged, namely, gold or foreign currency will remain and Soviet currency will not be introduced.

WOMAN'S CLUB TODAY

The Music Section of the American Woman's Club will present a program of interest at the general meeting of the club this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Carlton Cafe.

Soloists of the afternoon will be Mr. Dent, pianist; Miss Machlin, violinst; Mrs. Isherwood, soprano and Mrs. Leonard, contralto.

Tea will be served from 4 until 5 o'clock by members of the Music Section.

R

There are certain times each year when it is safe to eat oysters. Custom has it that this season is from September to April—during the months containing the letter R. The rest of the year leave them alone.

At certain phases of the Business Cycle occur opportune times to purchase bonds which combine safety and a good yield. We are now passing through such a period. A year ago high-class bonds paid 8%; at present 7% a year hence probably 6%.

This is an R month for oysters and BONDS.

them to a point where they did not dare turn in complaints to the authorities. Earlier in the day, when the creek was full of water, a boarding party visited his barge and chucked the coal overboard. Lee was now collecting the loot.

At this juncture the C. P. C. interrupted the tale and ordered Lee to get out of the creek and give himself over to the law. Lee declined to come out and told the policeman that if he wanted him he'd have to come and get him.

"It was not until I brought my carbine into play that he would climb out of the creek," the C. P. C. told the Mixed Court Magistrate and Assessor yesterday.

Lee, of course, declared that he was the victim of circumstance, libel and malicious persecution. The coal had fallen overboard on its own account, he maintained, and Tung—who evidently sought this means of dodging payment for services rendered—had hired him to retrieve it.

The Court, however, has recently considered several cases of piracy and extortion occurring on the Hongkew Creek and was of opinion that traffic on that waterway might be expedited considerably if Lee were kept away from it for about two months.

Dr. G. Sherwood Eddy Is Now At Hangchow; Is Returning Friday

Dr. and Mrs. G. Sherwood Eddy and Dr. Stanley Jones passed through Shanghai yesterday morning on their way from Nanking to Hangchow.

They are to spend the next four days in Hangchow, arriving in Shanghai on Friday for a number of engagements in local colleges and to various groups. Dr. Eddy has just concluded a successful series of meetings in Hankow, Changsha and Nanking.

While in Shanghai Dr. Eddy will make study of the situation in modern industry, a subject that has engaged much of his thought during the years following the war, and in connection with which he has made several visits to Great Britain and to the Continent of Europe as well as to different parts of America. Dr. Stanley Jones has come to China from India where he has been for some years a speaker to university students along the line of Christian apologetics. He will speak at a number of the larger educational institutions in Shanghai and vicinity.

ASIA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY EVERLASTING HIMALAYAS INCORPORATED

CAN YOU AFFORD IT NOW?

IF you or a member of your family falls suddenly ill, do you postpone the calling in of a physician or other qualified person until you feel you can afford it? Certainly, proper treatment may mean a considerable and unexpected outlay, but whatever your other expenses may be, you recognize that this is something that will not bear postponement, but must be arranged for at once.

SIMILARLY with life insurance. When men say they will take out a policy later, but cannot afford it immediately, it means that they do not appreciate the real importance of the services which life insurance renders. If you ever need insurance you need it now. The question is not as to whether you can "afford" it, but as to how you can possibly risk being without it. It is urgent. Tomorrow is as uncertain a quantity as any subsequent day, and your good intentions will not be of material benefit to your family in case of your premature death without having provided for their maintenance.

the police court warrant on which the arrest was effected at midnight.

Mr. Wang Ti-lien, Chief of the Treasury Department, has also been arrested. The President had not informed the Premier and the members of the Cabinet and they were not aware of it until after the arrest.

On Sunday morning other members of the Cabinet waited on the President asking for an explanation.

KOO MAKES OBJECTION

Dr. Wellington Koo pointed out that such procedure would render all members of the Cabinet liable to summary arrest at the instance of their political opponents.

Mr. Kao Eng-hung, Minister of Communications, and Mr. Sun Tan-lin, Minister of the Interior, strongly condemned the action taken contending that it was illegal and that the Speaker and Vice-Speaker should be arrested as they had used the Parliamentary seal without the authority of Parliament for the furtherance of personal and political ends.

On the other hand Mr. Kao Ling-wei, the Minister of Commerce, supported the President saying that the charges should be legally investigated and if were proved Mr. Lo Wen-kan should be severely punished, adding that Mr. Chung Shin-ming, a former Minister of Finance, was arrested on a somewhat similar charge and is still in jail.

REFUSES HIS FREEDOM

The President suggested that he personally should visit Mr. Lo Wen-kan and order his release. This was communicated to Mr. Lo Wen-kan who refused his liberty saying that he intended to remain in prison until his case had been fully cleared up.

Later it was decided to hand Mr. Lo Wen-kan over to the Department of Justice. Hearing this report upwards of twenty members of Parliament visited the President urging, ineffectually, that this should not be done.

During the afternoon the Procurator issued a subpoena for the Speaker and Vice-Speaker to appear as witness against Mr. Lo Wen-kan.

The Speaker and Vice-Speaker deny that they urged the immediate arrest of Mr. Lo Wen-kan. They say that they merely handed the charges to the President suggesting that the ordinarly legal procedure should be followed.

Parliament this afternoon is discussing this matter which is arousing unusual interest among foreigners and all classes of Chinese.

IMPEACHMENT VOTED

Mr. Wu Ching-lien presided in the House of Representatives this afternoon. There were 403 members present. Mr. Yu Hsiao-ching moved the impeachment of of Mr. Lo Wen-kan. The motion was carried by 375 votes to 28. Other members made speeches with regarded to the new loan contending that it was entirely illegal after which a motion was carried to the effect that the loan should be declared null and void as it had not been submitted to Parliament. The meeting is continuing.

Some of Mr. Lo Wen-kan's supporters intend to bring up the question of Mr. Wu Ching-lien's use of the Parliamentary seal if given an opportunity.

"The First Year"

The Far East Players were seen in a little domestic comedy last night at the Olympic called "The First Year."

The play dealt with the trials of a young couple in their first year of married life. There was the usual dinner party that all went wrong. It was very amusing. It ended with the guests getting out quick and the young couple quarrelling. Wife went nome to mother and hubby did his best to seek forgetfulness by breaking the Eighteenth Amendment.

Naturally the last act saw everyone meeting again. There was a bit of a fight twixt a rival and the hubby—very weak—and then the news that a little stranger was coming to town. That was enough. There was a kiss and the curtain came down.

The young couple were Miss Dorris Kemper and Bernard Nedell. They did very well. Just about as well as a young couple would get on in their first year. But Tim Frawley was in the cast. He was the dear old father. What an artist he is! His work last night was well worth the money of admission.

The play will be repeated tonight. On Wednesday and Thursday "Smilin' Thru" will be staged. Both Tim Frawley and Miss Adele Blood will be in the cast.

Church Renaissance Topic Of Lecture By Mr. Graham-Barrow

Mr. E. P. Graham-Barrow, headmaster of the Cathedral School delivered a lecture yesterday evening to the Church of England Men's Society at the Cathedral Church House on "Three Church Reformers," dealing with the Renaissance. He spoke of Erasmus, Colet and More and their far reaching effects. Mr. Edney Page was in the chair.

At the conclusion of the lecture when a vote of thanks was unanimously extended to Mr. Graham-Barrow, he was asked to deliver a second lecture taking the movement through the period of the Reformation.

Unfortunately owing to the lack of space it is impossible to publish the lecture today. It will, however, be published in succeeding issues.

SHAREHOLDERS PROTEST

As a result of the Presidential Mandate ordering the investigation of the China Merchants' Steam Navigation Co., Ltd., a new organisation of the shareholders of the company to be known at the China Merchants' Steam Navigation Co., Ltd., Shareholders' Society was organised yesterday when over 70 shareholders attended a preliminary meeting at the Sung Dah Bank on Nanking Road.

Mr. Chu Pao-san presided. It was decided to wire to Peking protesting against the action of the Government, styling it as an infringement upon the rights of merchants. The meeting also drafted a declaration announcing the raison d'etre of the society. A formal meeting of the society will be held on Nov. 29, when all shareholders are invited to attend.

General Ho Feng-lin, the local Defense Commissioner, also has sent a message of protest to the Central Government in connection with the case. He has asked Fu Siao-en, director of the company, not to resign from his post at the Bank of China for the present.

Chemists Let Down Bars To Society

At a meeting of the Shanghai Chemical Society, held in the Y.M.C.A. last night, the score and more members present decided unanimously to further the spread of chemical knowledge by letting down the bars of and permit all those interested in chemistry, whether actually engaged in the science or not, to become members. Six applications then were passed upon favorably.

Following the business meeting which was preceded by a dinner, the members heard an interesting address on Soap Making, by Mr. P. H. Hsu of the Wuchow-Koopun Soap Company, a factory operated by the International Dispensary.

MR. A. E. LOCKYER HURT

Mr. A. E. Lockyear, managing director of Alex. Ross and Company, sustained a fractured leg Sunday morning, when he was thrown from his pony while out riding.

Women Needed To Aid Red Cross Campaign

Only six of the American firms in Shanghai have thus far reported a one hundred percent membership in the Red Cross membership drive that is now under way in Shanghai. These firms (in which every American in the firm has signed or renewed a $2 membership) are the Brown-Duffy Goatskin Corporation, Mallouk Brothers of New York, Westinghouse Electric International Company, the Koster Company, the Jade Tree and the Standard Oil Company.

Carl Crow, who is directing the campaign, said yesterday that the services of more women workers are necessary if the drive is to be a success. American women are not pitching in with the same interest this year that they displayed in former drives, and for that reason the campaign is lagging.

The Red Cross headquarters are in the Robert Dollar building, Room 302, and any volunteers who wish to help the work along can do so by reporting there, where a list of names will be given to them. One morning's work by a sufficiently large number of workers will be enough to put the drive over, Mr. Crow says.

AMERICAN SCHOOL TEAMS TO PLAY FOR CARLILL CUP

Quartantine Delays Matches; Games To Be Held This Week Probably

Four soccer games, scheduled for the American School Junior and Midget Teams in the Carlill Cup league, were postponed on account of the quarantine, and the consequent inability of the S. A. S. to put their regular teams in the field. The games will probably be played this week. The schedules are unusually full this season, and the American School teams participating in the league matches, should make a very good showing.

Captain David Deull, the traveller and lecturer will speak on: "Australia, Civilized and Savage" at the Cathedral School for Boys, this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The lecture will be illustrated with many unique pictures of the strange aboriginal tribes that still inhabit the interior of "the great lonely Continent."

AMERICAN SCHOOL AGAIN IS OPEN TO DAY SCHOLARS

Quarantine Measures Halt Scarlet Fever; Boarders Spend Week Out Of Doors

The quarantine restrictions imposed by Dr. J. C. McCracken, the American School physician, have successfully checked the spread of scarlet fever, which caused the death of young Lillian Bacon last Sunday morning.

Following the closing of the school doors to all day pupils, the School staff immediately inaugurated a series of hikes and out-of-doors lectures to keep the children in the fresh air as much as possible. Last Monday morning, the entire boarding department spent the day at the Kiangwan Race Course, and Tuesday, they were favored by a lecture from Dr. J. H. Gray concerning the prevention of disease.

The following day Miss Bernice Austin spoke on 'Carmen,' and Thursday, Prof. Miller presented a detailed analysis of bacteria life, distinguishing between pathogenic and non-pathogenic bacteria. Games at the Hongkew Park were also provided and in the evenings, the program kept the children in the yard, instead of confining them to the crowded classrooms.

The quarantine measures have been entirely successful; no new cases have developed among the children, and classes resumed yesterday.

The rooms, as well as books belonging to the students, have been fumigated.

PEKING WEAKENS IN FU CASE, SAY CHINESE JOURNALS

Presidential Order To Be Amended Is Belief Of Shang Pao Here

As a result of the protests lodged by local societies in Shanghai against the order for the arrest of Fu Siao-en, of the Bank of China, the Presidential Mandate for his arrest will be changed to an order for investigation by a special commission, according to the Journal of Commerce. Fu is not to be handed over to a court of law pending the production of real evidence.

The Republican Daily News commented editorially yesterday as follows:

"In the charges against Fu Siao-en, the Ministry of Communications alleges his connections with Ching Hung-nien. Naturally, the community is anxious to know what the real relations are between Fu and Ching. Yesterday when Ching Hung-nien was asked of his friendship with Fu Siao-en, he stated that on two or three occasions he had met Fu at formal banquets, when both were guests. They knew one another only by name and they had no relations whatever. As regards the China Merchants' Steam Navigation Company, he said he knew nothing about it and had never been inside its offices. He said it was quite ridiculous that his name should have been connected with the present case against Fu."

The Journal of Commerce had the following:

"The wanton charges brought against Fu Siao-en, and the mandate to arrest him are looked upon with great concern by the whole merchant community of Shanghai. The Ningpo Association, the General Chamber of Commerce and the Bankers' Association have dispatched telegrams of protest to Peking. Now another telegram of protest has been sent jointly by 256 citizens of Shanghai headed by Chen Yun-ling. The Broadway Merchants' Union is also calling a meeting to discuss measures of protest. This shows how this case is regarded by the merchants of Shanghai."

SUBSIDIES FOR JAPANESE LINES MAY BE LOST

Withdrawal Of Post Offices May Hit Up River And Coast Steamers

The subsidies for the Shanghai-Hankow and Shanghai-Yokohama mail services maintained by Japanese shipping lines may be greatly reduced or even abolished upon the withdrawal of foreign post offices, according to reports from the Japanese press appearing in the Japan Advertiser.

The Shanghai-Hankow service is maintained by the Nishin Kisen Kaisha and the Yokohama-Shanghai service is maintained by the Nippon Yusen Kaisha.

The Japanese Department of Communications is now deliberating on the matter and the general impression is said to prevail that although the subsidy may be abolished those lines will still receive special consideration from the Government as their object is to develop Japanese trade in China as well as carry the Japanese mails.

Weddings

LANGSTON—MORRIS

An interesting wedding took place at St. John's Cathedral this afternoon, the contracting parties being Mr. Arthur G. Langston (son of Major Langston, of London) of the Hongkong Electric Company, and Miss Dorothy Mary Morris, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Morris, of Saiyingpun School, says the Hongkong Telegraph of November 15. The Rev. V. H. Copley Moyle officiated.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was attired in a gown of ivory satin and lace, carried a bouquet of white roses. She was attended by Miss Florence Rosser as bridesmaid and little Miss Duckworth and Master Duckworth as train bearer. The bridesmaid was attired in mauve taffeta, trimmed with silver lace, with hat to match and she carried a bouquet of violets. The bride's mother wore a gown of grey satin. Dr. R. Daugherty was "best man."

After the wedding, a largely-attended reception was held at the Hongkong Hotel, followed by a dance. The honeymoon is being spent in Shanghai.

Henry Arthur Gilbert, an engineer, was yesterday morning in the British Police Court on the charge of stealing a raincoat and a pair of gloves from the Central Garage on Saturday last. He was acquitted. Gilbert who was employed at the Central Garage until two days before the theft said he took the articles by mistake from the cloak room of the garage. He was very intoxicated and as soon as he became sober he realised that the raincoat and the pair of gloves were not his. There was no occasion for him to steal these as he had two raincoats of his own.

PRINCETON IS BIGGEST OF BIG THREE

Tigers Beat Yale, 3-0, And Win From Crimson By 10-3 Score

BROWN WINS

Takes Harvard Into Camp By Lone Field Goal; Army Easy Victor

(By United Press)

New York, November 12.—Princeton is the biggest of the "Big Three" this season. The Orange and Black eleven routed the big Harvard machine last week and yesterday at the Nassau Stadium, a field goal dashed the hopes of Yale and again raised the Princeton standard aloft. The field goal was enough to make the score board read Princeton, 3; Yale, 0, and thus Princeton is today acclaimed the greatest football machine in the East.

And Harvard was beaten. Up from Providence came the Brown bear and when the final whistle was blown, the Crimson was beaten by a 3-0 score, the first time Harvard has bowed to the team from Providence since the days of Sprackling, the Great. The betting on the Harvard-Yale game next Saturday is even.

While the Crimson and Blue were being trampled in the dust, the wonderful Army eleven tallied 39 points against Bates College. The Army two weeks ago played Yale a 7-7 tie and last week performed the same feat against Notre Dame, one of the best of the Middle Western teams.

Dartmouth won from Columbia yesterday by a score of 28 to 0, showing a clear raversal of the form displayed a week ago when Cornell had little trouble in defeating the Big Green team from Hanover, 23-0. Columbia was expected to beat the New Hampshire College.

GAMES LAST WEEK

A week ago Yale had an easy team defeating Maryland, 45-3, while the Navy rolled up a big score in the game with St. Xavier's, winning, 52,-0.

Two important battles were staged in the Big Ten Conference with Illinois pulling the surprise of the season by a 3-0 win over the University of Wisconsin.

The University of Chicago defeated Ohio State University, 14-0.

The powerful University of Nebraska eleven cinched the Missouri Valley championship by defeating Kansas, 28-0.

Oklahoma defeated Missouri, 18-14.

BIG LEAGUERS STILL WINNING JAPAN GAMES

Wallop Tomon And Mita Teams 12-0 And 9-3 Without Trouble

MEIJI EASY

Game Last Wednesday Won By 11-0 Score Before Big Crowd

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, November 19.—The American and National League baseball stars who are touring Japan scored 21 runs against Japanese teams in games played this week end.

Today the Americans defeated the Mita Club by a score of 9-3 while yesterday the big leaguers walloped the Tomon Club, 12-0.

MEIJI WALLOPED

Yokohama, November 16.—The crash of the hickory against the horsehide and the dust of the spikes on the home plate resounded from the Yokohama Athletic park yesterday afternoon as Herbert Hunter's major league athletes crushed the Meiji University team to the tune of 11 to 0 before a record crowd.

Hunter's pastimers laced the ball for 14 hefty blows to odd and sundry corners of the lot, one of the clouts by Stephenson, which cleared the leftfield fence, being one of the longest drivers ever made in the park. Runs just naturally sifted over the plate in [illegible] behind that flock of base blows although the Meiji nine fought manfully to stem the tide.

Watanabe must be given full credit for having pitched a masterful game against his experienced opponents for at times he had the leaguers baffled with his charge of pace.

THOSE patriotic Chinese whose greatest dream is to see their country firmly established on the international map would make more headway with less effort if they would subordinate politics and diplomacy, at least temporarily, and devote their efforts to the encouragement of athletics.

It may or may not be a sad commentary on the intelligence of the world, but it is true, nevertheless, that a swift pair of legs or a keen batting eye possessed by an athlete will do more to fix the status of his country in the international mind than all the essays that could be turned out by a year's whole crop of college graduates. And by the same token a sprinter that can clip a fifth of a second from the record will cause more of a stir in the world than all the speeches that all the Senators could make in a week.

Ask the average American to call off a list of living Britishers and the chances are that after he names the King and Lloyd George he will single out Harry Vardon or Hobbs or C. B. Frye or Jimmy Wilde or Gerald Patterson. And ask the average Britisher to tell you the names of some leading Americans and it's an even bet he will jump right over the heads of Harding and Wilson and land on the broad shoulders of "Babe" Ruth or Jack Dempsey or Walter Hagen or Bill Tilden.

ALL of which goes to show that the bat is mightier than the broadsword.

At the recent conference in Washington to discuss the limitation of armaments and kindred questions those able diplomats, Drs. Koo and Sze made some wonderful speeches. And yet if some unknown youth from Shanghai or Canton or Ichang were to go to England or America some Summer day and fight his way to the golf or tennis championship the service he would thereby do his country would be in a sense as far reaching as the great results accomplished by those eminent statesmen.

This is true because the accomplishment of such a feat would be notification to the world, in language that the world could understand, that China had at last determined to step into the march of progress. Such an achievement would give the world an entirely new conception of China, and make it but a short and easy step to the conviction that the new China had indeed arrived and must be reckoned with.

Chinese who doubt or dispute this simply do not understand the factors that are most potent in fixing the position of one country in the estimation of others. Japan understands, which is precisely the reason that the Japanese government has set about on a definite campaign to capture the world's tennis championship in ten years, if it is possible for Japanese brain,

Ferrier And Beath To Play In Final For Golf Title At Kiangwan Course Sunday

Playing Through Champion Vanquishes Cumming In Semi-Final Round While Beath Defeats Last Year's Runner-Up

In the semi-final round for the Shanghai Golf Club championship at the Kiangwan course, on Sunday, Messrs. J. B. Ferrier and C. T. Beath were victorious over Messrs. W. O. Lancaster and K. M. Cumming, respectively. Mr. Ferrier's margin over Mr. Lancaster was 9 and 7, while Mr. Beath defeated Mr. Cumming by 7 and 6.

The most encouraging thing about the semi-final round was the quality of Mr. Beath's game, and if a week hence, he can repeat his performance of Sunday the championship final will be a real match, instead of the customary walkaway for the brilliant Ferrier. Mr. Beath's morning round Sunday was accomplished in the remarkably low total of 75 strokes, with only two or three approximations where putts were not holed out. This is a fast pace, particularly in view of the fact that there was considerable wind.

Mr. Ferrier also went around in the morning in approximately 75 strokes, although this includes two or three approximations where the issue was decided without the necessity of final putts. But then nobody is surprised when this player does a 75—indeed a 70 or less by the redoubtable Ferrier would not cause anybody to gasp with astonishment—and the club members are only hoping that Mr. Beath will be able to give him a battle when they meet next Sunday. This, of course, is not expressing any preference as to the ultimate winner, for everybody is strictly neutral when it comes to that.

As to Sunday's play, Mr. Lancaster started out to make it a match with Mr. Ferrier, finishing the first nine even up after being two to the good when they turned into the racetrack. He took but one putt on the first green, and as he had reached the green on his second this gave him a birdie to start with. He was almost as good on the difficult second, taking a 4, one less than Col. Bogey's allowance. Mr. Ferrier came to life on the fourth with a fine 3 after making rather a mess of the first two holes, especially the second, on which he required a 6.

Once inside the race track, however, the playing through champion made few mistakes, finishing even with Col. Bogey on most of the holes, and scalping him on the rest of them. Mr. Lancaster continued to play good golf, but good golf gets you nowhere when you are out there swapping strokes with Ferrier. You have to play good golf on most of the holes and super golf on the others to keep within hailing distance of his flying coattails. At tiffin time Ferrier was 5 up, and it wasn't long after tiffin that he was dormie eight. The match ended on the next hole.

As to the Beath-Cumming match, Mr. Cumming found himself up against an opponent who was buffeting Col. Bogey about the course with about as much ceremony as he would have wasted on a stray wonk, and as a result he was unable to get anywhere, although his own game was somewhat streaky. He was 7 down at noon. After tiffin the runner up of last year showed much improved form, but as Mr. Beath continued to play sterling golf it was too late for him to change the result. Mr. Beath simply stood on his morning laurels and waited for the distance to narrow between his morning lead and the eighteenth green. At the twelfth hole he ended matters by dropping a twelve footer for a half.

The final match between Mr. Ferrier and Mr. Beath will be played at Kiangwan next Sunday the contest being for 36 holes. On past performances Mr. Ferrier ought not to have much trouble in coming through, but if he should happen to catch Mr. Beath in the same low scoring mood that he was in Sunday the match will be a good one. Mr. Beath proved in the semi-final round that he has good golf in him; the only question is, will he be able to get it out?

At any rate the friends of both players are hopeful that they will be at their best when they meet Sunday to decide whose name goes into the records as the club's premier player for the 1922-23 season.

Hongkong Would Stage Interport Rifle Meeting With Teams From 4 Cities

A correspondent writing to a Hongkong paper proposes an annual interport rifle match, along the line of the interport cricket, polo, tennis and football matches. He suggested a four port competition between Hongkong, Shanghai, Penang and Singapore.

Following the publication of this letter the newspaper sent a representative to see Mr. C. A. Grimes, the Hon. Secretary of the Hongkong Rifle League.

Mr. Grimes stated that he had read the letter and said he would like it to be known that every effort has been and is being made for an Interport Rifle Match.

He was at present in communication with the Rifle Associations at Shanghai, Penang and Singapore, but nothing had yet been definitely settled. Riflemen in Hongkong were very keen on an interport, but such a match depended on the co-operation of the other ports. With reference to "Bull's Eye's" suggestion of a Hongkong Rifle Association, such a matter had also been discussed, but owing to the lack of a public rifle range nothing could be done at present.

YANK FOOTBALL CANDIDATES OUT FOR WORK-OUT

Practice Sessions Planned For This Week At S. V. C. Drill Hall

About one dozen candidates for the American football team turned out for practice at the Race Course Sunday morning, and although the number of candidates was not as large as was hoped for, a fairly good practice session was held. The boys kicked the ball around for a time, after which there was a half hour or so of spirited signal drill. Acting Captain Kenny Irle was in charge of the squad.

Beginning this week, practice sessions will be held in the evening in the Drill Hall, and it is hoped there will be a good attendance at these practices. The American school team, which has been hard at work for several weeks, is in good shape and unless the civilians get out and work they are apt to find themselves with a Tartar on their hands Thanksgiving day, at which time the annual game will be played.

Captain Irle also hopes there will be enough interest to warrant the bringing of a team here from the North, as was done last year. But it will be useless to do this unless the best talent in Shanghai shows up for practice, as the Marines and Infantry elevens are very strong.

Basketball practice will begin this week. The S.A.S. will be represented by only one quintet in the league, this year, but there are indications that it will be a humer.

The team has been entered in the big league, and the schedule includes eighteen matches with six rival teams. There has been considerable disappointment evinced over the refusal of the league officials to permit the School to enter two teams, as there is a wealth of material, and two strong fives could be formed.

The new team will be built around thet hree letter men who played for the School last season Squires, Parker, and Wiens.

Armored Cars Inspected At Machine Gun Co. Camp

Members of the Municipal Council and a distinguished gathering of guests on Sunday witnessed a demonstration of the recently purchased armored cars and new machine guns of the Machine Gun Company of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps which was in camp through the week-end at the Race Course. The program given was under the direction of Col. R. Marr Johnson, Commandant of the S. V. C. and officers of the Machine Gun Company.

Shortly before 11 o'clock, Mr. H. G. Simms, chairman of the Council, Mr. Sidney Barton, British Consul-General, and members of the Shanghai Municipal Council were introduced to Captain J. Snodgrass, O. C. of the Machine Gunners. A formal inspection of the six armored cars took place as they were lined up on the parade ground.

The visitors, after the inspection, then boarded the cars and were taken to the 200 yards firing range where three of the cars immediately set to work in changing the guns from their turret mountings to tripod mountings in the open. The actual time taken from the order for the cars to "halt" and fire on the ground after dismounting and mounting the guns was 42 seconds.

A move was then made to the rear of the butts, where the armored cars were maneuvered for quick firing at surprise targets. Machine guns, rifles and revolvers were fired from stationary cars and visitors watched members of the unit go through the trench revolver course, looking on from the ramparts.

After the exhibition was over, the company adjourned to the camp mess where lunch was served.

Col. Marr Johnson presided, and the guests included Mr. H. G. Simms, Mr. Sidney Barton, C. M. G., Col. T. E. Trueman, Major W. J. N. Dyer, Capt. S. S. Sellick (Musketry Advisor), Capt. A. J. Stewart, Messrs. N. O. Liddell, V. G. Lyman, Chas. Harpur, H. W. Lester, W. P. Lambe, A. B. Lowson, and H. H. Girardet.

Colonel Marr Johnson, in the speeches which followed, explained to the guests the reason of the exhibition which they had just seen. He argued that there were three principal reasons why he had brought them to the Rifle Range.

First in order to show them the purchases of the Council in the new armored cars, which had involved an expenditure of £16,000; secondly, in order that they could see the good uses which were being made of the weapons, and thirdly to show the Council that the Rifle Range was being used for other purposes than a mere range.

The Commandant went on to say that he was sure members of the Council were pleased with what they had seen. The Machine Gun Co. had the most important job in the Settlement. It was a delight for him to see the armoured cars turn out every Sunday morning, but he noticed a familiarity of faces, and would like to see more members turn out and get themselves efficient.

Mr. Simms, who responded to the welcome extended to him and the members of the Council, and to the toast proposed by Colonel Johnson, then congratulated the Machine Gun Company on this further proof of the efficiency of the machine gunners and paid a glowing tribute to their usefulness to the community.

He said that in no time in the history of Shanghai had the S. V. C. been better equipped and more efficient than it is today and in that respect considered the advice of the Commandant had been wisely adopted in the purchase of the new armored cars which they had seen in action. It was no use having a Corps unless it was well equipped; it was neither fair to the community nor the men. There was no doubt that the efficiency of the Corps would act as a deterrent against trouble arising. Mr. Simms concluded by proposing the health of Col. Marr Johnson, to which the company responded with "He's a jolly good fellow."

The officers in charge of the Gunners were Capt. J. Snodgrass, O. C., Lieut. W. C. Bond and 2-Lieuts W. J. Hawkings and R. B. Roach.

Big Leaguers Still Winning Games

Pennock and Kelley, the latter succeeding the Bostonian in the fifth frame when the game was well in hand. Pennock held his opponents to one hit and that a scratch which came in the second inning when Stengel dropped a looping line drive off his shoe top after a hard run. Kelley, whose fame in baseball rests on other athletic feats besides pitching, had great speed and turned back the ambitious collegians with one blow, that also tainted, which bounded down the first base line and off Strunk's finger tips in the eighth. That was all for Meiji, in the hitting line, although the collegians's scrappy, speedy style of play won many friends for them in the bleacher seats. None of the collegians saw second base.

STEPHENSON HOMERS

The parade across the home plate started in the first stanza. Hunter led off with a walk and after Griffith had been called out on strikes, Stengel crashed a three-sack drive into the crowd in centerfield. Meusel hit to Watanabe, and Stengel was caught in a run down between third and home. Meusel drew up at second, but the side was out as Kelley was retired at first.

One more marker came over for Americans in the second by virtue of Stephenson's great drive, 50 feet above the leftfield fence into the street, down which the ball probably still is rolling. Lavan went out, but Sewell scratched an infield hit. Pennock filed to left but Hunter walked and Sewell went to third when Watanabe threw wild at second. All was over as Griffith fouled out.

Two counters filtered over the pan in the third. Stengel blasted open the inning by driving a smoking double to the leftfield foul line flag. It was the first ball pitched in the frame. Meusel drew a pass, and Kelley stung a single past third, scoring Stengel. Stephenson hooked a single past short, Meusel coming home from second. Lavan popped to Watanabe, but Sewell laced a single over the shortstop's head, filling the bases. With prospects for a myriad of runs, Pennock hit into a double play.

FIVE RUNS IN FINAL

The professionals made it five in the fourth. Hunter opened by spanking a single to center and went to second on a passed ball. Griffith hit to short, and Hunter was cut down between the bases. Stengel was thrown out at first, but Griffith scored from third on Watanabe's balk. Meusel crashed a double to center, but the side was out when Kelley's long fly to right field was smothered. Kelley's blow drove the outfielder up against the fence.

The Americans drew blanks in the fifth and sixth but annexed another score in the seventh when Stephenson drew a walk, made second and third on infield outs and scored when the shortstop threw low in fielding Sewell's grounder. Sewell continued a mad dash around the bases and was cut down at the home plate when the ball finally was retrieved.

But the real pyrotechnics blazed out in the eighth inning when the leaguers shot over five runs and placed the game safely on ice. Strunk slammed a hot single into leftfield, and Hunter followed suit with a blow down the first base line. Hunter was forced at second on Griffith's drive. Stengel hit into center for two sacks, scoring Strunk. Meusel gave the right-fielder a hard run for his fly and Griffith scored after the catch. Kelley cracked a one base blow to left, Stengel counting. Stephenson poled a terrific triple into the crowd in centerfield, Kelley crossing over. Stephenson took second on a passed ball but the side was out as Lavan hoisted a tall pop-up to first.

brawn and money to turn that trick. That is why Japanese racquet wielders find themselves sent abroad as soon as they show possibilities as internationalists. And in addition to being just about the last word in enterprise that undertaking is as far-sighted and wise as it is legitimate.

CHINA has the talent—better talent and more of it than Japan possesses—but it is in a pitifully raw state, practically untouched, let alone developed.

Here in Shanghai we have seen what tennis and football players can do, and in this column a few days ago there was mention of the exploits of a Chinese caddy with a golf club—a mere lad of seventeen years who, without the least instruction; without even a chance to practice except by stealth, who in spite of these handicaps can smash a golf ball two hundred and sixty yards or more with a midiron. Given a little instruction and a chance to play regularly for a few months that lad could step on any course in the world and shoot par golf or better. He has the form, the youth—and the wrists.

Next Spring, in Osaka, the Far Eastern Olympics will be held, and what is China doing in the way of preparation? In Japan hundreds of sturdy young men are in training now for those games, and have been from the day they arrived home after they left Shanghai following the games here in 1921.

Here is a great opportunity for China and if China's patriotic men of wealth want to do something big for their country they will see to it that some of these Chinese athletes who are itching to go to Japan next Spring have that opportunity, and what is more important—the opportunity for proper training beforehand.

MEDHURST IS BEATEN, 4-0, BY RAILWAY ELEVEN

Collegians Lose To S.N.R. In Good Game; Medhurst Is Outweighed

The football game between Medhurst College, and S. N. R. elevens at the Markham Road Ground on Saturday, resulted in a 4.0 win for the Railway. The Medhurst team left by special train from the Shanghai North Station and play began at 3.30. During the first half little of note occurred. Both sides made spasmodic rushes and on one of these occasions the Railway team centre forward shot a fine goal.

At Half Time the score was S. N. R. 1, Medhurst College 0.

After half time scoring began at once, the S. N. R. Centre forward, dashing away in fine style and scoring before the Medhurst Team seemed to realise that the whistle had been blown.

The Railway Team then pressed heavily, and though Medhurst goal keeper made some good saves, his play was very erratic and he allowed two very easy shots to pass with little or no attempt to stop them. Thus two more goals were added to the score.

The home team had considerable advantage in weight but one pleasing feature of the game was, that though losing, the Medhurst Team did not go so utterly to pieces, as is often the case with Chinese boys and kept on fighting to the end. The forwards pressed, from time to time and Ing Loong Sing narrowly missed scoring with a shot that just cleared the bar. The wings centred well but there weakness is in failing to improve on the centres. With a better Centre Forward, their play should improve considerably during the season.

When the whistle blew the score was S. N. R. 4. Medhurst College 0.

Del Monte

The first Carnival of the season will be given at the Del Monte Cafe on Thanksgiving Eve, November 29, according to announcement by Manager Al Israel today. A number of the latest novelties from the United States have just arrived for the Carnival and the Russian Ballet will give a special feature program.

The Ballet this week is giving one of the best programs they have produced during their engagement, and the individual numbers are also good. Talia Bochogova sang as delightfully as ever, and Zena Seretto in her new classical dance was a big hit. The program continues all this week.

This Scientific Test Made at Carnegie Institute

The beaker shown here is reproduced from a photograph that was made at the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

It is actual size, and contains 175 cubic centimeters (11 cubic inches) of rich demulcent lather of shaving consistency, which specialists in physical science obtained from half an inch of Colgate's Rapid-Shave Cream, as pressed from the tube.

(No wonder a half inch of this cream is more than enough for a shave.)

After an impartial scientific investigation these important facts were established:

(1) Colgate's Rapid-Shave Cream takes up an unbelievable amount of water, and turns it into lather instantly.

(2) The extra moisture in this copious lather makes it wonderfully effective in softening the beard.

(3) Colgate's Rapid-Shave Cream makes shaving easier, and it leaves the face smooth and soothed.

Colgate's Rapid-Shave Cream is better than you thought a shaving cream could be

Mail this paragraph, with your name and address, and we will send you a free tube containing cream enough for fifteen shaves, so that you may know how much better Colgate's Rapid-Shave Cream is than any other shaving cream you have ever used.

Moss Is Admitted To Practice In U.S. Court

Mr. Sidney Moss was admitted to practice before the United States Court for China by Judge Charles S. Lobingier yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Moss was proposed by Mr. R. S. Haskell, recently appointed a member of the board of examiners of the local American bar, and with whom Mr. Moss has formed a law partnership.

NEWBERRY QUITS WHEN COLLEAGUE SUFFERS DEFEAT

Senator Whom Henry Ford Charged With Bribery Resigns Seat

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, November 20.—Senator Newberry, whose election Mr. Henry Ford contested last year on the ground that he had bought votes but whom the Senate nevertheless authorised to take his seat, has resigned because of the defeat of his Republican colleague in the recent election.

Senator Newberry declares that this will make futile his continued public service as he will be continually "hampered by partisan and political persecution."

Pootung Strikes Still Unsettled

Because of the action of extremists among the Pootung mill strikers, the settlement previously agreed upon between the employers and the strikers' representatives were not approved, as a result of which the strike is still in progress. The "irreconcilables" organised processions in Pootung in which banners were carried, and on these were inscriptions urging the nonacceptance of the terms. The banners also carried requests to the Pootung shopkeepers to show their sympathy with the strikers by suspending business. In some instances there were disturbances. As a result of the demonstrations a large number of stores were closed yesterday. The Chinese authorities are taking special precautions to insure order, and have added reinforcements.

THINKS BABY'S OWN TABLETS SAVED HER BABY'S LIFE.

Canadian mothers have known and trusted Baby's Own Tablets for years. Here is one such mother's experience:

"I think I can thank Baby's Own Tablets for my baby's life. He was badly constipated, but after giving him the Tablets they relieved him almost at once. I also find them good when he is at all restless and I feel that I can not say too much in their favour," writes Mrs. John N. Pringle, Forest Falls, Ontario.

To mothers everywhere Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy, are a real friend. They gently regulate the bowels, make teething easy, are a specific for colic, diarrhoea, indigestion simple fever and worms. Contain no opiates, are guaranteed absolutely harmless for the youngest child. Of chemists, also post free 60 cents the vial, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

KIANGSU REACHES UNDERSTANDING WITH CHEKIANG

Birthday Of Chekiang Director Enables Both To Complete Fresh Alliance

(Special to The China Press)

Hangchow, November 18.—Last Monday, the 25th of the ninth moon, was the birthday of General Lu Yung-hsiang, director of Rehabilitation of Chekiang. Practically all the provinces deputed important representatives to offer their greetings and at the same time exchange their views on the political situation. Although no formal conference was held and merely conversations were conducted, they all have a bearing on the present situation.

General Tsao Kun of Paoting delegated Major-General Wang Yung-chung. General Tsai cheng-hsun of Kiangsi sent a man named Li. Tuchun Chi Shih-yuan of Kiangsu was represented by Messrs. Sung Fah-shu and Sung Yu-fung. Marshal Chang Tso-lin of Fengtien was represented by General Han Lin-chun while Dr. Sun Yat-sen's agent was Dr. Wang Ching-wei.

Gathered under the same roof, the representatives acted as if they were attending a military conference of a national nature. The matters discussed were of the utmost importance to the country. However, on account of the strict observation of secrecy, very little is known to the outside.

Among the representatives, the Kiangsu delegates had much to say, expressing their anxiety to come to perfect understanding with Chekiang. Those who participated in the conference say that since the internal conflict between Fengtien and Chihli, General Wu Pei-fu of Loyang has been considering himself the supreme leader of the nation without awaring of the important factors in other parts of the country. He adopts a high-handed policy towards all other provinces and is trying to oppress all those who dare to differ from him.

It will be remembered that some time ago, he planned to remove General Chi from the Kiangsu position and give him the war portfolio in the Cabinet. Later, the split between himself and General Feng Yu-hsiang of Honan caused him to grab the Honan tuchunate and give it to his protege, Chang Fu-lai. These acts have created no slight restlessness in the mind of General Chi.

More recently, the Anhui situation has become from bad to worse, while Chi's policy towards Fukien has met with serious obstruction. Despite the aid given him by General Tsao Kun from Paotingfu, General Chi feels keenly his breach with Wu Pei-fu and is sensible of the isolated position that he has been left in. He was, therefore, compelled to come to terms with his neighboring provinces in order to have some assistance in case of need.

General Lu has had no negotiations with the Northeast or the Southwest. The birthday offers him an opportunity to get in touch with them, and set down certain basic terms whereby further negotiations may be carried out. From now on, an alliance between Kiangsu and Chekiang is assured and a change will be effected in the general political situation. The peace and order of the two provinces will once more be securely maintained and residents of the two provinces are pleased to learn of the new understanding.

Mr. Chatley Tells Advances Made Recently In Science

In addressing the Quest Society on the subject, "Science in 1922," yesterday Dr. H. Chatley, after referring to the pleasure he felt at again meeting the members, described some of the outstanding features of recent scientific development. He remarked that there was some difficulty in exactly defining the moment when certain discoveries were made, since in nearly all cases the process of discovery was gradual and unending. Moreover in many cases the real importance could not be justly estimated, so that the more striking things might eventually prove of little practical importance while on the other hand a very minor result could finally prove to be of astounding significance.

Scientific progress is of two kinds, the addition of date and the deduction of general rules relating to all the accumulated data. The whole business was very much like that of the criminal investigator. All the facts have to be assembled, sorted and reported, possible clues traced, hypotheses formulated tried, checked and adopted or otherwise. In spite of the common belief as to the mutability of scientific theories the only real change that occurs is the successive substitution of wider generalisations for earlier ones which still remain true within the range for which they were originally established.

He apologised for the somewhat sketchy nature of his remarks on the ground that his knowledge of the different branches of science was very unequal and that his opportunities for following up recent work had been very limited in certain directions.

In astronomy the most interesting of recent work was that on the actual sizes of the stars. These had proved prodigously greater than had been anticipated. The problems of stellar distances had also given many surprises.

In biology the problems of heredity were still being strenuously followed and the old controversy of vitalism versus mechanism had receive a new lease of life. The President of the British Association this year had argued very strongly in favor of a mechanistic theory of life.

In chemistry the astounding multiplicity of organic compounds was becoming ever more apparent and a great deal of interesting work was being done in regard to the colloid or finely divided state of matter. One practical application of chemistry much discussed was that of poison gas.

In engineering the most striking developments recently were in connection with aviation and wireless. The enormous speeds now attained by aeroplanes, the improved possibility of motorless gliders for sport and the attention being given to the helicopter or direct lifting machine were all matters of present interest. In connection with wireless, the wireless telephone for the broadcasting of news and music and the control of unmanned vessels and aeroplanes were both developments consequent upon the perfection of the triode valve.

In mathematics the relativity theory still holds the main field of attention and it is hoped to have a special discussion on this shortly in Shanghai, at which Prof. Einstein himself may perhaps attend.

In medicine the continuous improvements in surgery and inoculation were of importance. Reference was also made to psychotherapy.

In philosophy there are no very noticeable advances.

In physics the most extraordinary results are being attained. The constitution of matter is now very largely made out and very remarkable practical results may follow.

In psychology, which does not mean psychicaly research the wave of interest in Coue's autosuggestion is dying down. Psychoanalysis somewhat modified is regarded as of the highest importance and the war has drawn great attention to the behavior of crowds.

In psychical research, the methods of psychoanalysis have almost entirely destroyed all belief in the alleged phenomena and special inquiries in some recent apparently valuable evidence have entirely discredited the integrity of the few reputable mediums. Lodge and Doyle have lost a great deal of their influence.

In sociology, a great deal of work has been done on economic questions. The problems of the reparations and labor unrest have discredited both the theories of unrestricted competition and also the Marxian theory.

In geology no very marked progress has occurred but the questions of the age of the earth, the earth's heat and the development of life have all received contributions.

In conclusion, the speaker hoped that the society would do all that was possible to support Mr. Sowerby's [illegible] and museum [illegible].

FORMER AGENT OF INSURANCE CO. TO BE TRIED IN NORTH

Stephen Power Has Preliminary Hearing In British Court

Stephen Power, who was arrested in Canada under a warrant issued against him under the Fugitive Offender's Act, was brought up yesterday morning before Magistrate G. W. King, in the British Police court, and ordered to stand preliminary trial at Tientsin. He is accused of embezzlement.

Mr. K. Newman appeared for the Sun Life Insurance Company of Canada, the plaintiffs and Mr. M. Langley Smith for Power. Power formerly was agent for the Company at Peking and Tientsin.

Sergeant William Robertson brought Power here by the Empress boat Sunday.

On the complaint of Mr. W. D. McCallum, on behalf of the Sun Life Insurance Company, of Canada, the warrant for Power's arrest was issued here. The warrant charged Power with stealing Tls. 2,645 from the complainants on or about May 15 last, and with embezzling Tls. 783, Tls. 736, $282 and $273.

Mr. Langley-Smith submitted an application on behalf of the defendant that the case be transferred to Tientsin, as the offences were alleged to have been committed there.

Mr. Newman said he had instructions not to oppose that application. Mr. Aschroff, the secretary of the Company, had already left for Tientsin, and the prosecution would be ready by the time Power arrived there.

The Magistrate made an order that the preliminary inquiry be held at Tientsin, and remanded Power in the custody of the British jail.

PREMIUM BONDS

During the life of your bond you participate in 168 drawings. By the law of averages you should draw at least 16 times and at least, say, $200.00. Therefore if you draw no more than $12.00 at any of the drawings, you get back from the I.S.S. $2,200.— plus profits for the $2,000.— you have paid to the Society. Can you think of any other investment so attractive as this where, without loss of capital, you participate in premium drawings with a certainty of a return of more than your investment? It is surely a case of "Heads I win Tails you lose."

Cut Orientals Out Of Fisheries, Plan Of The Canadians

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—The Royal Commission appointed to investigate the Pacific Coast fisheries recommends the reduction of fishing licences to Orientals by forty percent in 1923, the creation of a close season for sockeye salmon for four years on the Fraser River and its tributaries, provided the Americans do the same in Puget Sound.

Asia Banking Corporation

November 20, 1922

Spot bar silver was up ½d. and forward 1/16d. in London on Saturday. The New York price advanced to 64⅝ cents and the London-New York cross rate is unchanged at 448⅛.

Our official Sterling rate today was raised to 3s. 1⅝d., the Gold Dollar rate to 70½, the Yen rate dropped to 68½ and the other rates changed in proportion.

Our market here this morning was steady and became firm during the course of the day. In the early part of the morning business in Sterling was done at 3s. 2⅛d. for November-December-January delivery and in Gold Dollars at 71⅜ November-December and 71½ for forward.

In the afternoon, however, speculators became strong sellers, business in Sterling being done as high as 3s. 2 1/16d. for December-January delivery and in Gold Dollars at 72.

The market closed with sellers of Sterling at 3s. 2⅛d. for all deliveries until January and of Gold Dollars at 71¾ November, 71¾ December and 72 for forward delivery. There were sellers of Yen at the close at 67¾ and buyers at 67½.

Banks were quoting 3s. 2d. for Sterling bills 73 for Gold Dollar bills and 1060 for Franc bills. The rise in silver in London is attributed to bear covering on the part of China and Indian operators. Both the London and New York markets are reported as steady.

Review Of Business Conditions Here

Declining Exchange—Effect on Market—Favorable For Exports—Movement of Cotton to Japan.

The principal topic of conversation in mercantile circles the past week has been the steady decline in exchange. Speculators had been buying freely during the past week or so, and the decline had been forecasted by many Chinese dealers. The anticipation for lower rates has been fairly general, and in this support was assured from the fact that silver holding in Shanghai at the present time are too heavy and out of all proportion to the needs of the trade. It is needless to mention that trade in Shanghai is stagnant, and of course such large silver reserves as exist now are therefore unjustified. A low exchange would prove a blessing in disguise for the export trade, put to what extent it will benfit it one must do a certain amount of conjecturing.

In the first place, what are the products that would be enabled to move freely to Europe and America by the existence of a low rate of exchange? The pre-eminent position, of course, will go to China cotton which only recently came on the market and the crop of which has been exceptionally good, indeed a bumper one. In fact it has already commenced to affect this staple for the Japanese have been buying fairly good quantities for export to Japan. China cotton at present rates provides a cheaper buy than Indian or American cotton, notwithstanding the fact that the staple is now fluctuating in sympathy with prices obtaining in Wall Street in New York and in the Cotton Bazaar in Bombay.

An examination of the situation and the needs of the mills in Japan must convince any one that were Japan to keep buying her needs in this line in the Shanghai market a great deal of cotton which in the ordinary course would go to supply the needs of the many cotton spinnings and weaving mills in Shanghai would be diverted to markets abroad. It is hence deduced that with this buying on Japanese account must come a more stable market for cotton and incidentally also for cotton yarn.

COTTON YARN

As regards cotton yarn, a some what different law would operate. Here wo are faced with the question of supply and demand. If the demand is not large enough to sustain prices it would naturally follow that values must decline. We have seen this over again. Some investors of cotton shares and speculators on the yarn market allow themselves to be carried away with the delusion that high cotton prices must mean high cotton yarn prices. It all depends upon the nature of the demand, and no amount of blustering can help sustain rates unless there is real buying. Now so much for cotton yarn.

Reverting to cotton, it is the opinion that this year we shall see very large exports of the China staple to markets abroad. The local mills apparently have weighed the pros and cons of the whole thing carefully, for the situation is rather one that requires judicious purchasing. It is not likely cotton prices would be expected to go down very much, and it would appear that the cotton spinning and weaving mills would be well advised to buy their requirements far in advance. Much of a cotton mill's prosperity is due to judicious purchasing of the raw material, and the selling is only a secondary question.

The position of the local mills is still not as good as many are led to believe. Profits are extremely small, while quite a few are losing at present rates for manufactured cotton yarn. The cotton spinning and weaving mills in Japan are faring pretty badly, and have been at pains to extricate themselves from the region of the dolo rums. The output of the mills in these bad times instead of declining has been going up, an increase of 14,312 bales being recorded as compared with the month of September. There was an attempt not very long ago to limit the output of the sixty-seven spinning companies in Japan, but it seems the idea was acceptable to only a few—somewhat reminiscent of what happened in Shanghai during the recent period of depression, that the industry passed through. These mills appear to be in a parlous position, for the price of cotton yarn in Japan has not been improving with the improvement in the price of cotton. This illustrates most forcibly the point that we have tried to labor at the opening of this article. Higher prices of cotton yarn would not necessarily mean a larger amount of prosperity to the Shanghai cotton Mills. It is the demand for Cotton Yarn that would spell prosperity or loss for the mills.

EFFECT IN SHANGHAI

How far this situation in the Japanese yarn market is going to restrict the mills in that country in making their purchases of cotton in the Shanghai market is rather difficult to express an opinion. These spinning mills would have to make their purchases of cotton, and it is quite likely that the present period of stagnation in the trade would serve as a damper in their purchases of the staple. Some of the Japanese papers mention that this month will witness an increase of 200,000 bales in the output of the mills in Japan.

A low exchange would also facilitate the movement of seeds, wood oil groundnuts and vegetable oils. Its effect on silk is certain to be very negligible, for three-quarters of the silk crop has already been sold and contracted for. Visible supplies are extremely small. New business would be easier were Exchange more settled. A varying exchange has a deleterious effect on any new business. For instance the franc rate this week fluctuated as much as fifteen percent. It is therefore not surprising that Lyons should have felt a bit nervous over this panky-pankying with rates. Merchants abroad are awaiting for more stable conditions before placing orders. Lyons has kept out of the Shanghai silk market but the United States bought a few lots of steam filature of every grade and also tussah. The prices paid for these show declines over last week's high rates Purchases for manufacturers are for hand to mouth business. The silk stock held in the United States is seemingly reaching the average maximum. If this be true the demand for silk will stop, but probably for a short time. It would have no effect on the Shanghai market but is quiet likely to dishearten the Japanese market.

JAPANESE PIECE GOODS

Japanese piece goods are suffering from a lack of outlet in the China market. The trade in these has declined considerably, notwithstanding the fact that the Japanese products are cheaper than Manchester by about 15 to 20 percent. There is a discrepancy between prices obtaining at present in Japan and those that Chinese dealers in Shanghai are prepared to offer. There is no prospect of new business as local prices are advancing slowly, and it is not expected that the gap would be bridged in the near future—not until all the stocks in Shanghai are consumed. Shanghai stocks of Japanese piece goods comprise about 3,000 bales of grey and 2,000 bales of fancy. Mills in Japan are not willing to sell their products at a sacrifice, but they are experiencing great difficulties on account of the advance in the price of cotton and the decline in the sale of their goods. Only the new mills are doing business with the Chinese dealers in Shanghai as they are keen on establishing a footing in the China market even though it cost them dearly for it.

So much for the prospects of Japanese piece-goods cutting into the trade of Manchester in the China market. As for Chinese piece goods a big business is being done, especially in 13 lb. sheetings, the demand being particularly strong from Manchuria, Hongkong, Singapore, Java and India. The Chinese mills are enjoying a period of prosperity, and it looks as if the demand from these countries will continue for some time. Japanese sheetings are dearer today than the Chinese product, and as long as this difference between the two manufactures is maintained the inquiry will be diverted to Shanghai. The difference in price between Chinese and Japanese sheetings is about 70 cents per piece, and this is no small consideration to countries that use cheaper currency. There is a big demand for sheetings from everywhere as exchange is very unfavorable for gold. The Chinese mills are manufacturing sheetings as fast as they can, and they are going forward with a rush. Their output is about 10,000 bales per month, and the maximum production is now being resorted to. After the lean times of two or three months ago, the activity has served to brace the spirits of the millowners. Another reason why Japanese sheetings cannot compete at present with the Chinese manufacture is the fact that the Japanese mills use Indian and American cotton, while the Shanghai mills use China cotton, which is cheaper than these grades and this makes a big difference nowadays. Chinese sheetings are quoted at Tls. 5.30 for the 13 lbs.

Harding On Prohibition

PRESIDENT Harding's public announcement that while he did not think the Eighteenth Amendment would ever pass off the statute books of the United States there was a distinct shifting of public opinion toward liberalising the enforcement of prohibition merely bears out what has become more and more evident within the past few months.

The poll conducted by the Literary Digest, the result of which was printed in these columns, showed a decided trend toward lifting the prohibition lid to enable the sale of light wines and beer, and the vote in the elections on November 7, which showed a general and widespread victory for the liberalising of the law, added considerably to the general opinion that Americans, especially the working people living in congested districts in the cities, were getting restless under strict enforcement.

The task of making the United States dry has been a most difficult one, and there are still large oases scattered about the country, particularly in the larger cities where graft and corruption are intertwined with a general inclination to make light of the Volstead amendment. The United States, after giving prohibition a try-out, is dry in spots. Bootlegging has increased until it has become not only a national, but an international, jest—at the expense of the Americans. Despite the large sums that have been appropriated to compel observance of the law the enforcement of prohibition has to a large extent failed.

There is in the United States no desire for a return of the corner saloon. Prohibition, with its unquestioned beneficial effects of greatly increased bank savings by the people, the reduction of drunkenness and crimes of most natures, and a higher standard of living, has proven that the old time saloon has no place in the present day America. The change of heart of the electorate has probably been brought about by that same desire to leave all extremes behind and return to "normalcy." Bone-dry prohibition is an extreme, especially with the latest interpretations of the law, and within a short time—possibly in the next Congress—the Volstead amendment will very probably be so modified as to allow light wines and beer. President Harding's statement may be taken as the initial hint of the Republican attitude.

But in considering this grave question, it must always be borne in mind that a new generation is growing up in America upon which the drink habit will not be fixed.

-:- The Changing East -:-

The Industrialisation Of China

BY ISAAC F. MARCOSSON

Mr. Marcosson, who only recently spent some time in Shanghai gathering data and material for a series of articles on the Far East for the Saturday Evening Post devotes one entire article to a discussion of China from an industrial point-of-view in which Shanghai is featured. In the article he pays an extended compliment to Mr. H. Y. Moh and Mr. C. C. Nieh—photographs of both well known gentlemen appear with the article—and discusses the entire situation in an interesting explanation of the situation for the 2,000,000 readers of America's greatest weekly publication.

Twenty years ago nearly every Chinese student who went abroad was ambitious to bring back a doctor's or master's degree that proclaimed him competent in some academic subject. Today most of the Chinese who go overseas to acquire an education not only devote themselves to applied science but are eager to get a practical training in office, factory or hospital before going back home.

This means that China is being slowly industrialised. No aspect of the changing East—not even the professed change of heart in Japan towards her huge neighbor—is more significant than the evolution that figuratively is supplanting the blue gown—most Chinese menials wear blue—with the overall. Chinese industrialisation has more potentialities for world commercial power than almost any other nation because China is not only the last reservoir of cheap and competent labor but is perhaps the richest undeveloped domain on the globe. With constructive guidance she can be made almost completely self-contained.

The three great needs—machinery, technical skill and adequate communications—are about to enter upon a new era of fulfillment, due largely to the safeguards set up by the Washington Conference. Chief among them is the guaranty of the integrity of the republic, which ends selfish commercial exploitation by foreign powers and which prevents, for example, the establishment of a little Japan within her borders.

No country anywhere else presents such striking contrasts as China. On the land the farmer is doing his work by primitive methods precisely as his ancestors did a thousand years ago, while in the city his brother or son is driving an engine, running a cotton mill or operating a cold-storage plant. The extraordinary feature is that the nation that invented credit, gunpowder, paper, ink, printing, glass and porcelain should, after the lapse of all the centuries, be engaged in acquiring what amounts to the second steps in the advancement of the very arts and crafts that it introduced.

INDUSTRIALISATON

Chinese industrialisation, like the building of her railways—they are, of course, closely interrelated—has a bigger value than mere expansion for profit. The application is both internal and external. China, as most people know, is not one country but a group of countries, each with a different dialect. Despite the common heredity of race and creed there are violent antagonisms between the provinces, hence the difficulty in unification and the most continuous civil strife. Link these immense provinces with railways and make them commercially productive—the surface of resource has scarcely been scratched—and you make them prosperous and therefore harmonious. Nothing so irks human nature as poverty. Up to the present time there have been three mouths for every two bowls of rice in China. Industrialisation, with all its aids to health, income and happiness, will help to eliminate famines because distress in the remote interior is not so often due to lack of food as to lack of the facilities with which to transport it. So much for the internal aspect.

In a larger sense an industrially developed China means stabilisation for the whole of Asia. In this series I have frequently pointed out the social danger—it is really a universal menace—resulting from the pressure of growing populations upon stationary food supply. Japan presents the best—or, rather, worst—illustration. She must reach out for new sources of sustenance, and China offers the most available field for both food and employment. The Japanese are already taking advantage of it. Since the new bulwarks about China prevent nationalistic penetration, there must eventually develop between these two nations which hold the balance of economic and political peace in the Far East a unity and amity of interests born of that irresistible thing, self-preservation. Thus the industrialisation of China really represents a phase of world policy which must enter into any consideration of the international problem today.

The Washington Conference was not necessary to draw attention to the fact that the center of political and economic gravity has shifted to the Pacific. European complications—and most of them are born of bigoted nationalism—have become a familiar nuisance. Each succeeding crisis is merely a rehash of the previous one; and despite the epidemic of conferences—there have been fourteen since the Versailles peace gathering—no constructive advance is registered. Besides, European sources of raw materials, production and markets have almost reached their limit. Distribution must blaze a fresh path.

This is why China, with her vast commercial potentialities, becomes such a vital factor in the struggle for existence. Yet up to the time of the Washington Conference her desire for development met obstacles at almost very turn.

With extraterritoriality restraining her sovereignty, and the jealousy of foreign powers impeding railway and other construction, she was caught between those familiar millstones, because graft and maladministration completed the otherwise fairly successful work of prevention. As soon as she turned to industrialisation she met with more trouble, for nations like Japan, who must use her as a dumping ground for surplus products, have opposed her incipient industry, since it robbed them of a market.

Happily, that danger seems to be removed. Japan realises that it is good business for her to conciliate and develop China as a Chinese entity. Moreover, China can compete with Japan in various industries, including toys, porcelains and textiles. The Chinese are particularly adapted to spinning and weaving. In iron, coal, leather, felt, matches, glassware and hosiery, China can in time easily outstrip Japan. In many of these products she has almost entirely displaced Japanese goods in her home markets.

China has many advantages over Japan when it comes to industrialisation. For one thing, she has the natural resources, especially coal and iron, that her neighbor lacks in any quantity. She also products a big cotton crop, while every pound of the fleecy staple that goes through a Japanese mill must be imported. In the second place, Chinese labor is much cheaper than Japanese, because the cost of living is lower. In China currency is not inflated, whereas Japan is flooded with paper money. At this point comes what seem to be a curious paradox. Though the Chinese Government is chronically bankrupt the people themselves are prosperous. Nor must it be forgotten that for every male worker in Japan there are at least five in China. Whereas the Japanese laborer undereats and outlasts the average Anglo-Saxon in toil, the Chinese bests the Nipponese, for he can live on less and produce more.

CHINA'S ADVANTAGES

Although Japan leads China in engineering skill, once the Chinese strike their stride in industrialisation they will surpass the Japanese. The Celestial is infinitely more thorough in everything he does, and is a better natural mechanic. I can illustrate with the case of a motor car. In Japan the average life of an automobile is about two years. This is partly due to bad roads, but primarily to the fact that the Japanese do not know how to take care of machinery of any kind. In China, where the roads are almost as bad, a motor lasts longer. The same applies to practically all factory equipment. A Chinaman learns to love the wheels he tends, while the Japanese has an insatiate curiosity about them that is often ruinous. He likes to take machines apart and then has difficulty in reassembling them.

One big possibility in Chinese industrialisation is that China may become a second Germany in cheapness and quantity of output. The Japanese have not yet learned the real meaning of mass production save in the family line. The Chinese, on the other hand, seem to be able to lend themselves to large duplication of products, which in the end is the one best agency for supremacy in industry.

When you compare Japan's extraordinary rise from isolation with China's slow industrialism you get a striking contrast. But many factors must be considered. Japan has a congested population of 60,000,000 in an area about the size of California, whereas China has her 400,000,000 scattered over more than 4,000,000 square miles of territory, which is one-sixth greater than the extent of the whole United States.

Over one-half the population of China lives in the great valley of the Yangtsze—the Yangtsze is the Mississippi of the country—while more than two-thirds of the people are jammed into one-third of the area along the waterways and the coast lines of the south and east. Thus, half of China is not only sparsely settled but really needs colonisation. This half leads into the vast stretches of Central Asia and forms one of the gateways to Siberia.

Geography has been only one handicap to industrialisation. Until a comparatively recent time—China's first foreign loan was not negotiated until 1895—there was a strong prejudice against the foreigner and his wares.

This is one reason why railway construction was delayed. An amusing incident occurred in connection with pioneer steam land transport in China. In 1875 an English firm got a contract to build what was to be an improved road from Shanghai to Woosung. Woosung is at the mouth of the Yangtsze River. After a mile of track had been laid a tiny locomotive was run over it. It was the first railway trip in China. The local Chinese ranking official protested, on the ground that his idea of an improved road was an ordinary highway. All arguments in China last a long time, and meanwhile track-laying continued and the road was opened to the public. Within a month a Chinese was struck by a locomotive, and killed. So intense was the popular indignation that the contract was nullified, the tracks torn up, and all the rolling stock was shipped to Formosa, where it was left to rust on the beach. The original station building at Shanghai was torn down and a temple to the Queen of Heaven erected on the site, as a propitiation to the gods.

ORGANISED PRODUCTION

A more recent and little-known evidence of the Chinese attitude in this matter happened in 1898, when the chief engineer of what is now the Peking-Mukden Railway was formally summoned to the Peking Tsung Li Yamen, which then corresponded to the Foreign Office. Quite solemnly he was told that it had come to the ears of the Central Government that various Chinese engineers employed on the railway had settled private grudges by running their trains through the houses of their enemies and destroying them. They were commanded to have every train thereafter preceded by a man riding on a donkey and carrying a red flag. "Thus," said the wise men, "the unsuspecting will be warned."

Remember, too, that the Boxer uprising, which was the last organised protest against the foreign devil, was as recent as 1900, and China is paying a terrific price for that folly. The Boxer indemnity was the first of the many monetary ills that have made China the real sick financial man of the world. China has also lacked foreign agencies with which to push her trade and there have been shortage of transport and a corresponding deficiency in purchasing power.

The old inadequacies are now

INTERNATIONAL COURTESY

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—For him who preaches internationalism and toils in the cause of international comity, frequent ridings in the tramcars of Shanghai would be an object lesson. For want of a more appropriate association, the first class tramcar has been the only place where foreigners of various nations have been involuntarily thrown into contact with the Chinese. Here our internationalist would find all the practices of courtesy to ladies characteristic of Western etiquette; but these, to his disappointment, are mostly confined by the limits of races. It is a pleasing sight to see a number of male passengers courteously evacuating their seats upon the entrance of a foreign lady, especially a young one; but when a not over robust Chinese woman strenuously hangs herself on the leather strap, with a number of foreigners looking on from their comfortably seated position, the spectacle is not calculated to promote international friendship and racial good-will.

If the practice of offering seats to ladies in public places is founded on the fact that the female is physically the weaker sex, there is all the more reason why courtesy should be accorded to to Chinese ladies, since the Chinese women are on the whole undeniably weaker than those of the West. Our foreign friend may argue that the Orientals are not amenable to the rules of Western etiquette. Nothing can be farther from the truth. The Chinese who travel in the first class car have always been prompt in offering seats to Western ladies. It is but just that we should expect similar treatment to Chinese ladies from Western gentlemen.

The issue is between international courtesy and racial prejudice. Either the foreign community who use the tramcar should allow courtesy to ladies to prevail regardless of the difference of color and language, or they should expect that the Chinese will offer seats only to Chinese ladies. There is a third possibility: viz., that the Chinese will continue to show all possible courtesy to Western ladies, in spite of its not being reciprocated, in accordance to the principle set down by the founder of the Christian religion—do to others what you wish others to do to yourself. But much as we admire the Golden Rule, we prefer to ask the Western residents among us to take the lead in translating into action that gospel which they have taken so much pains in bringing to the dark lands of the East.

More instances than one have led us to doubt whether Western courtesy is not after all a matter of color and race.

Courtesy must be reciprocal, between individuals as well as nations and races. In a cosmopolitan settlement like ours, the absence of national prejudice and racial contempt is essential to harmony and good-will. But if the foreign community should continue to practise courtesy only among themselves, the only sane and consistent course for the Chinese to take is to follow their example. Thanking you for the valuable space, I am, etc.

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.
It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.
Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

being wiped out and a new era of manufacture and merchandising has come. A few years ago the Chinese corporation was practically unknown. Today there are hundreds, ranging from tobacco and cotton factories to modern department stores that hum with varied activities by day and blaze like sections of the Great White Way at night. One of the largest chains of stores was started by a man whose first money was earned as a coolie on the streets of Shanghai. Thus the element of self-made success is not lacking in this drama of Chinese development.

The average person hardly associates the chamber-of-commerce idea with the Chinese. He is more apt to regard the tong, or secret society, as the favorite agency for co-operation. Yet you cannot go to any community of consequence in China without finding a chamber of commerce. It serves a double purpose, for in addition to being a trade accelerator it is also a political center. The president of such a body, therefore, wields a powerful influence.

When I went to Hangchow it was at the invitation of the local chamber, extended through the American Chamber of Commerce of Shanghai. I was met at the station by a delegation whose spokesman made a speech of welcome that would have held its own with the boost oratory of the most accomplished American commercial-club rooter. At Hangchow, as in a dozen other big cities, a commercial museum is maintained by the chamber of commerce, to exhibit what China produces and to find out just what she needs. It is one of the many evidences of industrial uplift.

The scope of Chinese economic resources is so enormous that it is difficult to know where to start an appraisal of them. One can only let a few well-launched activities indicate the possibilities once the yellow giantess really begins to capitalise her strength. The expansion of the cotton-spinning industry will best illustrate China's progress in organised production.

To understand the significance of textile manufacture in China you must know that with the exception of the well-to-do, who usually wear silk, cotton constitutes the apparel of every Chinese. Most of it is dyed with indigo. This is the reason why the country is so often called the land of the blue gown. The late Wu Ting-fang once said, "If one could succeed in adding an inch to the shirt tail of every Chinese he would keep the cotton mills of the world busy for years supplying the increased demand."

Hence what is technically known as piece goods, which is cotton cloth, is the great staple of commerce in the Far East. It applies to India to almost the same degree as it does to China. When Ghandi, for example, ordered the boycott on imported cloths it was a severe blow to the Manchester manufacturers.

In her cotton industry China has one advantage in that she grows a large part of the raw product. In normal years the crop ranges from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 bales. The native cotton is a hardy, short, kinky staple and not good enough to meet the needs for the better yarn. It has been proved, however, that China can grow American cotton of excellent quality and long staple. The Chinese Cotton Mill Owners' Association, which is the most powerful, perhaps, of all the industrial groups, is dedicating itself to more and better cotton. An American cottongrowing expert is now a part of the personnel of Nanking University, and experiments are being made with American seed throughout all the cotton-growing areas. America's biggest rival for raw cotton in the China field is India. Last year we shipped 142,000 bales into Shanghai, which is the cotton-spinning center, while India sent 300,000 bales.

The fact that the number of spindles in Chinese cotton mills has grown from 841,894 to 3,165,546 on April first of this year is an indication of the strides made. Two-thirds of these spindles are operated in Chinese mills built with Chinese capital under Chinese management with Chinese labor, working, in the main, with Chinese raw material and disposing of the products in Chinese markets.

Despite the advance registered the Chinese textile output does not begin to meet the home demand. This is shown in the fact that during 1920 the country had to import nearly $300,000,000 Mexican, of cotton cloth, and more than half that value in cotton yarn. During this period China exported a fair amount of yarn, cloth and cotton goods. In commenting on these figures, Julean Arnold, for many years commercial attache of the American Embassy at Peking, and one of the soundest experts on Far Eastern economics, made this interesting comment:

"It is apparent from these figures that it will be a long time before China is able even to supply its domestic needs. It must also be borne in mind that while striving to meet these demands the price of labor in China will increase, as is already evident, and with the advance in labor costs the purchasing power of the laborers will improve, resulting in heavier demands from the masses for cotton goods. Those who now wear little or nothing during the summer will have the means to keep clothed. Those who now wear patches upon patches will decide, with a better purchasing power, to wear fewer patches. Those content with one or two suits of clothes a year will, with more early cash, find their pride calling for two, three and four suits a year. Thus, it is more likely that with the developments in the cotton manufacturing industry of China, the demands for cotton goods will for many years exceed the ability of the people to meet them."

Even with wages the inevitable has already begun to happen in China. Although the country is still the last stronghold of cheap labor the pay of cotton-mill employes, who outnumber those in any other industry, has increased. As recently as 1920 the women received only 25 cents a day Mexican, which is 12½ cents in American money. They now get 40 cents a day Mexican. The male wage is approximately twice that of the female, all things considered. This increase is, of course, due to the rise in the price of rice, which is the barometer of living conditions in both China and Japan. In 1920 a picul of rice cost $8. A picul is 133 1-3 pounds and will feed five Chinese for a whole month. The price today is from $11.50 to $12 a picul. The Chinese are not quite so fastidious as the Japanese, who will eat only the native product. One of the forms of punishment in Japan is to feed jail prisoners with 'imported' rice.

Children Cry for Fletcher's
CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is particularly a preparation for Infants and Children made agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach and pleasant in its action. It has been in use for over thirty years and has always been one of the most highly esteemed of all cathartic preparations. It has one great advantage over other preparations of its kind in that while it opens the organs readily and completely, it does not have a tendency to produce subsequent constipation so much to be dreaded.

It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth. Try it.

Save the Babies.

Infantry mortality is something frightful. We can hardly realise that of all the children born in ivilised countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, thirty seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one half before they are fifteen! We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestion, sickness, death. To avoid any possibility of giving your child opiates, or narcotics of any kind, keep Fletcher's Castoria in the house, and Save the Babies.

Mrs. Ayscough's Lecture On Chinese Poetry Delights Woman's Club

Mrs. Florence Ayscough, in an illustrated lecture on "Chinese Poetry given before the Literary Department of the B.W.A. gave her large audience vivid glimpses into the sheltered life of the Chinese women, of the ancient customs of the people and of the old court life through her interpretations of a number of Chinese poems.

Mrs. Ayscough's talk was in the main taken from her discussion of Chinese poetry in the Introduction in the book, "Fir Flower Tablets," the poems in which were translated from the Chinese by Mrs. Ayscough and arranged by Miss Amy Lowell.

Regarding Chinese poetry Mrs. Ayscough said in part—"There has probably never been a people in whose life poetry has played such a large part as it has done, and does, among the Chinese. The unbroken continuity of their history, throughout the whole of which records have been carefully kept, has resulted in the accumulation of a vast amount of material. This material constitutes one of the finest literatures produced by any race the world has known. "Chinese scholars rank their principal poets in the following order—Tu Fu Li T'ai-po, and Po Chu-. I have purposely kept chiefly to them.

"The great stumbling-block which confronts the translator at the outset is that the words he would naturally use often bring before the mind of the Occidental reader an entirely different scene to that actually described by the Oriental poet. The topography, the architecture, the fauna and flora, to say nothing of the social customs, are all alien to such a reader's own surroundings and cannot be easily visualised by him.

TWO GREAT RIVERS

"The vast country of China, extending from the plains of Mongolia on the North to the Gulf of Tonkin on the South, a distance of over eighteen hundred miles, and from the mountains of Tibet on the West to the Yellow Sea on the East, another stretch of about thirteen hundred miles, comprises within its "Eighteen Provinces" every climate and condition under which human being can exist with comfort. The two great rivers of China, the Yellow River and the Yangtsze Kiang are the two great rivers of China and to them is due largely the character of the people and the type of their mythology.

"The Yellow River, according to the old mythology, was said to have its source in the Milky Way while the Yangtsze was referred to as the "Great River" or "Son of the Sea." Its source lies among the mountains of the Tibetan border where it is known as the "River of Golden Sand."

"The topography of Chinese poetry may be said to fall into three main divisions, and allusions are made to—

1.—The beautiful scenes in the Eighteen Provinces.

2.—The desolate region beyond the Jade Pass. (In Kansu).

3.—The glorious "Western Paradise." (Inhabited by the Western Empress Mother and those countless beings who, after a life in this world, had attained Immortality and dwelt in this region of perfect happiness supposed to lie among the K'un Lun mountains in Central Asia.

"The Golden Age of Chinese Learning was in the T'ang Dynasty. The literary examinations introduced under the Han were perfected, poets and painters were encouraged, and strangers flocked to the Court at Ch'ang An. The reign of Ming Huang, A. D. 712-756 the "Brilliant Emperor" was the culmination of this remarkable era. China's three greatest poets lived during his reign. His reign ended sadly, however.

"The Emperor fell into the toils of his favorite court beauty, the lovely Yang Kuei-fei, to whom he was slavishly devoted.

"The poems 'Songs To The Peonies' by Li T'ai-po refer to the beautiful Yang Kuei-fei who rose to such heights of power that her word was law. Her follies and extravangances were innumerable and her ill-fame spread about the country to such an extent that, when the rebellion broke out in the Kingdom, the soldiers refused to fight until she had been executed.

"The following poem by Li T'ai-po refers to Yang Kuei-fei.

PEACEFUL BRIGHTNESS

"The many colored clouds make me think of her upper garments,
of her lower garments:
Flowers make me think of her face.
The Spring wind brushes the blossoms against the balustrade,
In the heavy dew they are bright and tinted diversely.
If it were not on the Heaped Jade Mountain that I saw her,
I must have met her at the Green Jasper Terrace, or encountered her by accident in the moon.

II

"A branch of opulent, beautiful flowers, sweet scented under frozen dew,
No love-light like that on the Sorceress Mountain for these: their bowels ache in vain.
Pray may I ask who, in the Palace of Han, is her equal?
Even the "Flying Swallow" is to be pitied, since she must rely upon her new adornments.

III

"The renowned flower, and she of a loveliness to overthrow Kingdoms—both give happiness.
Each receives a smile from the Prince when he looks at them.
The Spring wind alone can understand and explain the boundless jealousy of the flower,
Leaning over the railing of the balcony at the North side of the aloe-wood pavilion.

"The Emperor was called 'The Son of Heaven.' The desire to bask in the rays of the Imperial Sun was shared by ambitious fathers who longed to have their daughters appear before the Emperor, and possibly make the fortune of the family by captivating the Imperial glance. This led to the most beautiful and talented young girls being sent to the Palace where they often lived and died without being summoned before the Son of Heaven. Although numberless tragic poems have been written by these unfortunate ladies, many charming romances did actually take place, made possible by the custom of periodically dispersing the superfluous Palace women and marrying them to suitable husbands.

"The Cast-Off Palace Woman of Ch'in and the Dragon Roses:

"At Wei Yang dwells the Son of Heaven.
The all Unworthy One attends beside
The Dragon-broidered robes.
I ponder his regard, not mine the love
Enjoyed by those within the Purple Palace.
And yet I have attained to brightening
The bed of yellow gold.
If floods should come, I also would not leave.
A bear might come and still I would protect.
My inconsiderable body knows the honor
Of serving Sun and Moon,
I flicker with a little glow of light
A firefly's. I beg my Lord to pluck
The trifling mustard plant and melon flower
And not reject them for their hidden roots.

WROTE ON LEAF

"A story is told of how a sorrowful palace maiden wrote a poem on the back on of an Autumn leaf which she threw into the stream in the Imperial grounds. Later this poem was picked up by a scholar who replied to the poem. Sometime later the maiden was married to a scholar and what was their joy to find that the scholar was no other than the poet who had found the maiden's poem on the Autumn leaf.

"Apart from the humble cottage of the very poor, all dwelling houses are constructed on the same general plan. They consist of a series of one-story buildings divided by courtyards, which, in the houses of the well-to-do, are connected by covered passages running along the sides of each court. A house is cut up into chien or divisions, the number being determined by the wealth and position of the owners.

"The homes of the people both rich and poor are arranged in three or five divisions: official residences are of seven chien: Imperial Palaces of nine.

"In the Women's Apartments, in poetry, the windows are 'gold,' or 'jade,' the door by which it is approached is the Lan Kuei or 'Orchid Door.'

"There are many exquisite poems written around the life in the Women's Quarters. A poem which illustrates the love of the wife for her husband is 'A Beautiful Woman Grieving Before Her Mirror,' by Li T'ai-po.

"The round mirror standing on the dressing table of the Chinese woman is a symbol of constancy and is sometimes called the magpie mirror. There is an old story that when a husband starts out on a long journey he breaks the round mirror in two, taking one piece with him and leaving the other with his wife. When the husband returned, if the wife had been faithful to him, the two pieces of the mirror joined perfectly—but if she was unfaithful her half of the mirror turned into a magpie and flew away.

I

"Bright, bright, the gilded magpie mirror
Absolutely perfect in front of me
On the jade dressing-stand.
Wiped, rubbed, splendid as the Winter moon.
Its light and brilliance, now clear and round.
The rose-red face is older than it was yesterday,
The hair is whiter than it was last year.
The white-lead powder is neglected.
It is useless to look into the mirror.
I am utterly miserable.

II.

"When my Lord went away, he gave me this precious mirror coiled with dragons
That I might gaze at my golden-threaded dress of silken gauze.
Again and again I take my red sleeve and polish the bright moon,
Because I love to see its reflection lighting up everything.
In its center is my reflection, and the golden magpie which does not fly away.
I sit at my dressing-stand, and I am like the green Fire-Bird, who, thinking of its mate, died alone.
My husband is parted from me as an arrow from the bow-string.
I know the day he left: I do not know the year when he will return.
The cruel wind blows—truly the heart of the Unworthy One is cut to pieces.
My tears, like white jade chop-sticks, fall in a single piece before the water-chestnut mirror.

"An example of the life within the palace is brought out in the poem—

THE PLEASURES WITHIN THE PALACE.

"From little, little girls they have lived in the Golden House.
They are lovely, lovely in the Purple Hall.
They dress their hair with bill flowers,
And rock-bamboos are embroidered on their dresses of openwork silk gauze.
When they go out from the retired Women's Apartments
They often follow the Palace chairs.
Their only sorrow, that the songs and wu dances are over,
Changed into the five-colored clouds and flown away."

The talk was illustrated by exquisite lantern slides.

EXECUTIONS ARE SHOCK TO CITY; TRIED IN SECRET

People Fear Drastic Policy Against Irregulars Is Now Near

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 18.—The announcement of the execution in Dublin of the four men, arrested in October, has come as a shock to the city. Their trials were secret and the public were apparently unaware that military courts were functioning, though their establishment was among the powers granted to the Government by the Provisional Parliament and when the proclamation six week ago offered pardon to those surrendering it was announced that military courts would be established at the end of that period.

The announcement of the executions is regarded as heralding a policy of drastic action against the irregulars.

The trial of the irregular leader, Mr. Erskine Childers, concluded secretly at Portobello Barracks yesterday. The charge has not been disclosed.

Clemenceau Will Show Americans Position of France

New York, Nov. 18.—M. Clemenceau arrived in New York today. Responding to an address of welcome at the City Hall, he said that the only purpose of his mission was to bring France's position clearly home to Americans.

AUSTRIAN FINANCE
(Reuter's Service)

Vienna, Nov. 19.—It is reported that the Government has agreed with the League of Nations' delegates that henceforth the State shall cease to cover its financial requirements by the issue of new notes and presumably, resort to the new Note Bank for money needed. New banknotes will only be issued in future to meet ordinary demands of commerce and industry. The Austrian banknote printing-presses are therefore at a standstill.

DISCUSS TREATIES
(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 17.—The Foreign Relations Committee of the House of Representatives met yesterday to consider the Sino-German Treaty, the Sino-Chilean Commercial Treaty, the Sino-Persian Treaty and Sino-Swiss Commercial Treaty, which were recently referred to it by the House. Mr. Chien Tai, Chief of the Treaty Department of the Waichiaopu, was present to reply to the questions of the members of the Committee.
